Statistics and the Public Sphere
Numbers and the People in Modern Britain, c. 1800–2000

Edited by Tom Crook and Glen O’Hara
Contents

List of Tables ix
List of Figures xi
Acknowledgements xiii

1 The 'Torrent of Numbers': Statistics and the Public Sphere in Britain, c. 1800–2000 1
TOM CROOK AND GLEN O'HARA

2 Statistics and the Career of Public Reason: Engagement and Detachment in a Quantified World 32
THEODORE M. PORTER

PART I
Governing Numbers

3 'In These You May Trust': Numerical Information, Accounting Practices and the Poor Law, c. 1790 to 1840 51
STEVEN KING

4 The State and Statistics in Victorian and Edwardian Britain: Promotion of the Public Sphere or Boundary Maintenance? 67
EDWARD HIGGS

5 Numbers, Experts and Ideas: The French Economic Model in Britain, c. 1951–1973 84
GLEN O'HARA
vi Contents

PART II
Picturing the Public

6 Numbers and Narratives: Epistemologies of Aggregation in British Statistics and Social Realism, c. 1790–1880 103
MAEVE E. ADAMS

7 Printed Statistics and the Public Sphere: Numeracy, Electoral Politics and the Visual Culture of Numbers, 1880–1914 121
JAMES THOMPSON

8 The Statisticalization of the Consumer in British Market Research, c. 1920–1960: Profiling a Good Society 144
STEFAN SCHWARZKOPF

PART III
Numbers and Public Trust

9 Suspect Figures: Statistics and Public Trust in Victorian England 165
TOM CROOK

10 Numbers, Character and Trust in Early Victorian Britain: The Independent West Middlesex Fire and Life Assurance Company Fraud 185
JAMES TAYLOR

PART IV
The Politics of Statistics

11 'Population Combined with Wealth and Taxation': Statistics, Representation and the Making of the 1832 Reform Act 205
S.J. THOMPSON

12 A 'Naked Strength and Beauty': Statistics in the British Tariff Debate, 1880–1914 224
EDMUND ROGERS
13 Polling Public Opinion before Opinion Polls: The Conservative Party and Election Prediction between the Wars 244
LAURA BEERS

14 Towards New Histories of an Enumerated People 264
TOM CROOK AND GLEN O'HARA

Contributors 271
Index 273