Failure to Sufficiently Explain Assumptions 236
Insufficient Due Diligence 237
Failure to Make Inquiries with Significant Third Parties 237
Failure to List All Appraisers' Qualifications 238
Failure to Consider the Small-Stock Premium 238
Failure to Factor in Income Tax 239
Failure to Set Forth the Adjustments to Financial Statements in the Appraisal Report 239
Failure to Produce a Replicatable Report 240
Failure to Identify the Multiples Selected 240
Failure to Discuss Weightings in the Appraisal Report 240
Failure to Distinguish between Tax and Book Depreciation 240
Failure to List Guideline Companies 241
Failing to Separate Operating and Nonoperating
Aspects of a Company 241
Failing to Lay Foundation for Small Stock Premium 241
Failing to Justify Capitalization or Discount Rates 242
Failure to Think Like an Investor 242
Failure to Define Capital Structure 243
Failure to Adequately Consider the "Willing Buyer" 243
Failure to Adequately Consider the Willing Seller 243
Failure to Accurately Describe the Subject Property 244
Failure to Properly Classify the Subject Company 244
Failure to Explain the Basis for a Valuation Discount 245
Failure to Properly Consider the Subject Company's Growth Rate 245
Failure to Explain Market Multiples Selected for Guideline
Companies 245
Failure to Explain Equal Weighting of Conclusions of Value
Failure to Consider Differences between the Subject
Company and the Guideline Companies 246
Failure to Utilize Data from a Guideline Company That the Appraiser's Own Summary Chart Reflects Is Closest to the Subject Company 246
Failure to Explain the Selection of the Range of Performance Ratios Selected 246
Failure to Adequately Explain Why Companies Selected as Guideline Companies Are in Fact Comparable to the Subject Company 247
Failure to Explain Why So Few Comparable Properties or Guideline Companies Were Selected 247

CHAPTER 18 Alleged Errors of Commission 249
Retrospective Appraisals 249
Use of Past Publications of an Appraiser against the Appraiser 250
Using Untested Methodology 250
Improper Reliance on a Draft Appraisal 251
Conclusion of Value Offends Common Sense 251
Mathematical Errors 252
Inconsistency 253
Double Counting 253
Conflicting Conclusions of Value 254
Sole Reliance on a Valuation Model 254
Incorrect Usage of Discounted Cash Flow Method 256
Skewed Assumptions 256
Overemphasis on Buy-Sell Restrictions among Related Parties 256
Using Historic Book Value of Assets in Net Asset
Value Approach, Even Though Asset Appraisals
Had Been Obtained 257
Misapplication of Pre- and Post-Tax Figures 257
Ignoring the Hypothetical Nature of the Willing Buyer or Willing Seller 257
Inconsistent Use of Commercially Available Data 258
Use of Commercially Available Data That Warns of Statistical Inaccuracy 258
Misstatement of Methodology Employed by Appraisers on Whose Work the Appraiser Has Relied 259
Undue Reliance on the Work of Another Appraiser 259
Using a Valuation Method without Laying a Foundation
That It Is a Legitimate Method (for Example, the Business
Broker Method Using Data from the IBA Market Database) 259
Improper Reliance on a Study That Does Not Completely
Provide All Relevant Data 260
Failure to Apply Discussion of Economic Factors to the Subject Company 260
Using Commercially Available Data in a Manner Contrary to How the Data Source Says the Data Should Be Used 261
Failure to Proofread Report Prior to Issuance 261
Apparently Conflicting Assumptions Used for the Same
General Purposes without Sufficient Explanation 261
Use of Different Valuation Methods in Valuing the Same Interest in Valuation Reports Offered at Different Times without Adequate Explanation 262
Making Improper Adjustments to Financial Statements 262
Reliance on the Pre-IPO Studies and the Restricted
Stock Studies to Determine the Discount for Lack of Marketability for a Controlling Interest 263
Misreading or Failing to Properly Consider Revenue
Ruling 59–60 263
Failure to Accurately State the Number of Shares
Outstanding in the Subject Company 264
Inconsistency in Valuation Methodology Expressed in Testimony versus the Appraiser’s Methodology as Expressed in another Writing 264
Unreasonably Low Projections
Failure to Add Back Depreciation Included in Costs-of-Goods-Sold Computation in the Computation of EBDIT
Combining the Discount for Lack of Control with the Discount for Lack of Marketability
Utilizing an Assumed Income Tax Rate That Differed from the Actual Past Tax Rates of the Subject Company
Disconnect between Assumption about When Revenues or Expenses Would Be Received or Incurred and When Those Items Were Actually Received or Incurred
Error in Computing Terminal Value When Using the Income Approach
Discounting an Income Stream Only at or Close to the Risk-Free Rate
Modifying or Abandoning Positions Taken in the Written Appraisal Report during the Appraiser’s Testimony
Referring to a Standard Industrial Code in the Appraisal Report without Identifying That Number in the Report
Relying upon Guideline Companies That Were Not Comparable to the Subject Company
Preparing and Utilizing Earnings Projections That Vary Significantly from the Earnings Projections Prepared by the Subject Company
Use of Only One Year’s Worth of Guideline Company Data
Inappropriate Employment of a Discount to Make a Conclusion of One Valuation Approach Appear More in Line with Another
Failing to Properly Calculate a Valuation Discount
Inappropriate Use of a Price-to-Asset Multiple Where the Difference between Book Value and Asset Fair Market Value Is Not Close
Selection of Too Few Guideline Companies or Comparable Properties
Selection of Too Few Performance Measures in the Guideline Company Method
Cherry Picking Valuation Multiples
Using an Inexcusably Old Comparable Sale
Inappropriate Reliance on Governance Document Restrictions in Establishment of Valuation Multiples
Stating the Wrong Date from a Comparable Sale
Mismatching the Valuation Dates of the Guideline Companies and the Subject Company in Computing Price Multiples
Defining “Guideline Company” Too Narrowly
CHAPTER 19  Ten Burning Issues within the Appraisal Profession  275

Issue 1: Methods of Determining the Discount for Lack of Marketability  276
Issue 2: Applicability of Discount for Lack of Marketability to a Controlling Interest  286
