Vegetable Production and Marketing in Africa

Socio-economic Research

Edited by

Dagmar Mithöfer

World Agroforestry Centre, Kenya

and

Hermann Waibel

Leibniz University of Hannover, Germany
Contents

Contributors vii

Foreword xi

Acknowledgements xiii

External Reviewers xv

1 An Overview
   H. Waibel and D. Mithöfer 1

2 Theoretical Concepts for Socio-economic Research of Vegetables in Africa
   H. Waibel 9

3 Framework for Economic Impact Assessment of Production
   Standards and Empirical Evidence
   D. Mithöfer 25

4 The Impact of Food Safety Standards on Rural Household Welfare
   S. Asfaw 45

5 The Impact of Compliance with GlobalGAP Standards on Small and Large Kenyan Export Vegetable-producing Farms
   K. Mausch and D. Mithöfer 67

6 Food Production Standards and Farm Worker Welfare in Kenya
   C. Ehlert, D. Mithöfer and H. Waibel 85

7 Group Culture and Smallholder Participation in Value Chains:
   French Beans in Kenya
   J. Paalhaar and K. Jansen 97

8 Export Vegetable Supply Chains and Rural Households in Senegal
   M. Maertens, L. Colen and J. Swinnen 111
9 Comparative Assessment of the Marketing Structure and Price Behaviour of Three Staple Vegetables in Lusaka, Zambia
D. Tschirley, M. Hichaambwa and M. Mwiinga

10 Value Chains and Regional Trade in East Africa: the Case of Vegetables in Kenya and Tanzania

K. Weinberger, M. Pasquini, P. Kasambula and M. Abukutsa-Onyango

12 Private Voluntary Standards, Co-investment and Inclusive Business
E. Blackmore and J. MacGregor

13 An Approach to Strengthening Vegetable Value Chains in East Africa: Potential for Spillovers
J.M. Lenné and A.F. Ward

14 Challenges for Economic Impact Assessment of Classical Biological Control in Kenya and Tanzania
A. Asfaw, D. Mithöfer, B. Löhrr and H. Waibel

15 Indirect and External Costs of Pesticide Use in the Vegetable Sub-sector in Kenya
I. Macharia, D. Mithöfer and H. Waibel

16 Integrated Pest Management Training and Information Flow among Smallholder Horticulture Farmers in Kenya
N. Bekele, D. Mithöfer, D. Amudavi and G. Obare

Index