Controlling Crime
Strategies and Tradeoffs

Edited by Philip J. Cook, Jens Ludwig, and Justin McCrary

The University of Chicago Press

Chicago and London
Contents

Acknowledgments

Economical Crime Control
Philip J. Cook and Jens Ludwig

I. CRIMINAL JUSTICE REFORM

1. The Deterrent Effect of Imprisonment
   Steven N. Durlauf and Daniel S. Nagin

2. Institutional Requirements for Effective Imposition of Fines
   Anne Morrison Piehl and Geoffrey Williams
   Comment: David Alan Sklansky

3. If Drug Treatment Works So Well, Why Are So Many Drug Users in Prison?
   Harold Pollack, Peter Reuter, and Eric Sevigny
   Comment: Jonathan P. Caulkins

4. Mental Health Treatment and Criminal Justice Outcomes
   Richard G. Frank and Thomas G. McGuire
   Comment: Jeffrey Swanson
II. REGULATION OF CRIMINAL OPPORTUNITIES AND CRIMINOGENIC COMMODITIES

5. Rethinking America’s Illegal Drug Policy  215
   John J. Donohue III, Benjamin Ewing, and David Peloquin
   Comment: Robert J. MacCoun

6. Alcohol Regulation and Crime  291
   Christopher Carpenter and Carlos Dobkin

7. The Role of Private Action in Controlling Crime  331
   Philip J. Cook and John MacDonald

III. SOCIAL POLICY

8. Decreasing Delinquency, Criminal Behavior, and Recidivism by Intervening on Psychological Factors Other Than Cognitive Ability: A Review of the Intervention Literature  367
   Patrick L. Hill, Brent W. Roberts, Jeffrey T. Grogger, Jonathan Guryan, and Karen Sixkiller
   Comment: Kenneth A. Dodge

9. Family Income, Neighborhood Poverty, and Crime  419
   Sara B. Heller, Brian A. Jacob, and Jens Ludwig
   Comment: Ilyana Kuziemko

10. Education Policy and Crime  465
    Lance Lochner
    Comment: Justin McCrary

11. Improving Employment Prospects for Former Prison Inmates: Challenges and Policy  521
    Steven Raphael
    Comment: Jeffrey Smith

    Seth G. Sanders
    Comment: Terrie E. Moffitt and Stephen A. Ross

Contributors  603
Author Index  607
Subject Index  619