Risk and Social Change in an African Rural Economy
Livelihoods in pastoralist communities

John McPeak, Peter D. Little, and Cheryl R. Doss
Contents

List of plates, figures, and tables
Acknowledgments

1 Introduction
2 Culture, history, and political ecology
Peoples and locations
The social and economic importance of mobility
Critical ecological "patches" in the region
Influences of colonial and post-colonial processes
Pastoral institutions and social relationships
Summary

3 Markets and market relations
Description of regional market and marketplaces
Transport constraints
Social relations of livestock trade
Livestock trade from the perspective of the herder
Market types and actors
Consumer goods
Summary

4 A risky region
Risk in the production environment
Market risk
Community-level risk
Risk perceptions
Summary

Contents

5 Changing livelihood strategies

- Income, poverty, and inequality 81
- Livelihood groups 85
- Income components 94
- Expenditure 98
- Access to livestock 100
- Milk production 107
- Livestock sales 108
- Access to cash 111
- Summary 114
- Appendix 5A: T-test results 116

6 Household and intra-household patterns

- Household structure 119
- Female-headed households 122
- Health and nutrition 127
- Education 131
- Activities and sources of income 135
- Asset ownership 139
- Household bargaining 146
- Summary 148

7 Regional development priorities

- Developments in arid and semi-arid rangelands 149
- Development rankings 156
- Past experience with development projects and development rankings 157
- Development rankings 160
- Future development rankings 161
- Community and individual differences in rankings 164
- Summary 166

8 Conclusion

Appendix A: PARIMA publications 175

Notes 186
References 190
Index 201