

Matthäus Markus Sielecki

Creating and Governing an Integrated Market for Retail Banking Services in Europe

A Conceptual-Empirical Study of the Role of Regulation in Promoting a Single Euro Payments Area

PETER LANG

Internationaler Verlag der Wissenschaften

Table of content

Foreword	VII
List of tables	XIII
List of figures	XV
List of abbreviations	XVII
A Introduction	1
1. Research problem and relevance	1
1.1 Financial market integration and economic development in Europe.....	1
1.2 Reasons for fragmented retail banking markets in the EU.....	3
1.3 Financial market integration and banking regulation.....	4
1.4 Research questions and objectives	6
2. Research scope and definitions	7
2.1 Definition of retail banking services	7
2.2 Definition of banking regulation and supervision.....	11
2.3 Defining integration and single market for the purpose of the study....	13
2.4 Institutions and governance.....	15
3. Research status and planned approach.....	16
4. Research strategy and design	18
4.1 Research strategy.....	18
4.2 Research design	19
5. Methodology and structure	20
B Theoretical framework	27
1. New Institutional Economics.....	29
1.1 Characterization of New Institutional Economics	29
1.2 Concepts of New Institutional Economics and reference to banking regulation	33
1.3 Transaction costs in banking regulation and their measurement	34
1.4 Theory on agency relationships.....	37
2. The functional dimension of regulation.....	41
2.1 Normative theory and market failure	41
2.2 Positive theory and government failure.....	46
2.3 Coordination failure.....	50
2.4 Contrasting functional banking regulation approaches.....	53
3. The territorial dimension of regulation.....	56
3.1 European Integration Theory.....	58
3.2 Europeanization Theory	61

C	Analysis of traditional banking regulation	67
1.	Traditional explanations for banking regulation.....	67
1.1	The inability of depositors to monitor banks	68
1.2	The risk of a systemic crisis	69
1.3	Cost-benefit assessment of traditional banking regulation	71
2.	Measures and instruments.....	77
3.	Banking supervision in Europe.....	78
3.1	Regulatory and supervisory organizations in Europe	79
3.2	Harmonization developments of European banking supervision.....	81
4.	Critique.....	88
4.1	Evaluation criteria.....	88
4.2	Effectiveness.....	89
D	Conceptual model.....	93
1.	Objective and approach.....	93
2.	Overview of conceptual model.....	96
3.	Types of barriers and impediments to market integration	99
3.1	End-consumer perspective.....	101
3.2	Banks' and financial service providers' perspective.....	102
4.	Key decision factors for a functional assessment	104
4.1	Key decision factors	104
4.2	Territorial considerations.....	106
5.	Market detriments and potential benefits of regulation.....	107
5.1	Consumer perspective	108
5.2	Bank detriments and potential benefits of regulation.....	112
6.	Assessment of transaction cost of regulation.....	114
7.	Measuring improvement of market outcome through regulation.....	115
7.1	Review of direct empirical measurement instruments	115
7.2	The measurability of market outcome.....	120
7.3	Quantity-based indicators for cross-border retail banking activity.....	126
7.4	Measuring the removal of obstacles to integration	127
8.	Summary	129
E	Harmonization of retail payments and the case of SEPA	133
1.	Relevance for retail banking integration.....	133
2.	Background on non-cash payments in Europe	136
2.1	Definition of payments services and payment arrangements.....	137
2.2	Domestic vs. cross-border payments in the euro area.....	139

2.3	Domestic payments.....	141
2.4	Cross-border payments.....	142
2.5	Retail payment systems.....	143
2.6	Infrastructure.....	144
3.	Retail payment markets prior to regulation.....	145
3.1	Barriers to integration and market detriments.....	145
3.2	European policy agenda.....	151
4.	Sources of market detriments and potential benefits of regulatory intervention.....	154
4.1	Market failure.....	155
4.2	Government failure.....	179
4.3	Risks.....	191
4.4	Incentive and coordination problems.....	192
4.5	Conclusion.....	199
5.	Potential improvements through regulation.....	203
5.1	Removal of regulatory obstacles.....	203
5.2	Competition and cooperation.....	206
6.	Regulatory intervention in the European retail payments market.....	210
6.1	The cross-border payments regulation and the SEPA initiative.....	211
6.2	The Payment Services Directive.....	213
7.	Measuring the improvements in market outcome through regulation.....	217
7.1	Supply-side barriers.....	217
7.2	Demand-side barriers.....	240
7.3	Artificial barriers.....	254
7.4	Summary of findings.....	256
8.	Validation and conclusion.....	259
F	Implications for the territorial dimension of banking regulations.....	263
1.	Europeanization impacts on policy making processes.....	263
1.1	Policy uploading and downloading within the FSAP process.....	263
1.2	Lessons learned from Regulation 2560/2001, SEPA and PSD.....	267
1.3	Transposition and enforcement problems.....	270
2.	Consequences for the multilevel governance structure.....	273
G	Conclusion.....	276
	Reference list.....	281