Inter-organizational information exchange, supply chain compliance and performance

Guangqian Peng
Table of contents

Acknowledgements (致谢) 15

Chapter 1 - Introduction 17
1.1 Research background 17
1.2 Problem statement and research questions 21
1.3 Outline of the research 23

Chapter 2 - Theory background and hypotheses 25
2.1 Transaction cost economics 26
2.2 Theory on inter-organizational communication (IOC) 30
2.3 Theory on supply chain management 34
2.4 Hypotheses on antecedents of inter-organizational communication 39
2.5 Hypotheses on inter-organizational communication 45
2.6 Hypotheses on inter-organizational communication, supply chain collaboration, and performance 49
2.7 Concluding remarks 50

Chapter 3 - Research design and methodology 55
3.1 Study population, data collection, and company profile 55
3.2 Constructs operationalization 62
3.3 Construct validity and reliability 69
3.4 Data analyses 75
3.5 Concluding remarks 79

Chapter 4 - Antecedents of Inter-Organizational Communication 81
4.1 Construct validity, construct reliability, and baseline statistics 81
4.2 Antecedents of inter-organizational communication 86
4.3 Influence of company characteristics on communication antecedents 95
4.4 Concluding remarks 98

Chapter 5 - Elements of Inter-Organizational Communication 101
5.1 Baseline statistics 101
5.2 Communication elements and their interrelationships 105
5.3 Influence of company characteristics on communication between companies 116
5.4 Concluding remarks 123

Chapter 6 - Influence of Inter-Organizational Communication on performance 127
6.1 Baseline statistics 127
6.2 Performance results of inter-organizational communication 130
6.3 Influence of company characteristics on supply chain compliance and company performance 136
6.4 Concluding remarks 142
Chapter 7 - Synthesis

7.1 Summary and conclusions
7.2 Theoretical contributions and methodological applications
7.3 Managerial and policy implications
7.4 Limitations and future research

References

Appendices
Appendix 3.1. The survey questionnaire
Appendix 3.2. Category criteria of firm size used in this research
Appendix 4.1. Results of hypotheses testing of the Communication Antecedents Model for the company-supplier sample (N=165)
Appendix 4.2. Results of hypotheses testing of the revised Communication Antecedents Model for the company-supplier sample (N=165)
Appendix 4.3. Results of hypotheses testing of the Communication Antecedents Model for the company-customer sample (N=96)
Appendix 4.4. Results of hypotheses testing of the revised Communication Antecedents Model for the company-customer sample (N=96)
Appendix 4.5. The influences of company characteristics on communication antecedents for the company-supplier sample
Appendix 4.6. The influences of company characteristics on communication antecedents for the company-customer sample
Appendix 5.1. Results of hypotheses testing of the Communication Elements Model for the company-supplier sample (N=165)
Appendix 5.2. Results of hypotheses testing of the Communication Elements Model for the company-customer sample (N=96)
Appendix 5.3. The influences of company characteristics on communication for the company-supplier sample
Appendix 5.4. The influences of company characteristics on communication for the company-customer sample
Appendix 6.1. Results of hypotheses testing of the Communication-Chain compliance-Performance Model for the company-supplier sample (N=165)
Appendix 6.2. Results of hypotheses testing of the Communication-Chain compliance-Performance Model for the company-customer sample (N=96)
Appendix 6.3. The influences of company characteristics on supply chain compliance and company performance for the company-supplier sample
Appendix 6.4. The influences of company characteristics on supply chain compliance and company performance for the company-customer sample

Summary
中文研究摘要 (summary in Chinese)
About the author

Inter-organizational information exchange, supply chain compliance and performance