Making Trade in Services Supportive of Development in Commonwealth Small and Low-income Countries

Patrick Macrory
Sherry Stephenson

B 378902
Contents

Abbreviations viii

Summary ix

1. Introduction: Definition of Special and Differential Treatment 1

2. Special and Differential Treatment Commitments Provided to Developing Countries 5
   2.1 Introduction 6
   2.2 Architecture of services trade agreements . 6
      2.2.1 The GATS 6
      2.2.2 The Doha Development Round 7
      2.2.3 Regional trade agreements 7
   2.3 Provisions acknowledging that reciprocity is not expected from developing countries 7
      2.3.1 The GATS 7
      2.3.2 The Doha Development Round 8
      2.3.3 Regional trade agreements 9
   2.4 Negotiated outcomes 9
      2.4.1 The GATS 9
      2.4.2 The Doha Development Round 11
      2.4.3 Regional trade agreements 12
   2.5 Technical assistance 14
      2.5.1 The GATS 14
      2.5.2 The Doha Development Round 15
      2.5.3 Regional trade agreements 16
   2.6 Longer time periods for implementation 16
      2.6.1 The GATS 16
      2.6.2 The Doha Development Round 16
      2.6.3 Regional trade agreements 16
   2.7 ‘Best endeavour’ provisions 17
      2.7.1 The GATS 17
      2.7.2 The Doha Development Round 17
      2.7.3 Regional trade agreements 18
   2.8 Pros and cons of special and differential treatment 18
5. Mode 4 Commitments by Developed Countries in North–South Regional Trade Agreements 63
6. WTO Proposals Relating to Special and Differential Treatment in Trade in Services 66

Bibliography 75