Transformation of the Employment Structure in the EU and USA, 1995–2007

Edited by

Enrique Fernández-Macías
University of Salamanca, Spain

John Hurley
European Foundation for the Improvement of Living and Working Conditions, Dublin, Ireland

and

Donald Storrie
European Foundation for the Improvement of Living and Working Conditions, Dublin, Ireland

palgrave
macmillan
Contents

List of Illustrations vii
Preface and Acknowledgements xiii
Notes on Contributors xv

1 Introduction
Donald Storrie, John Hurley and Enrique Fernández-Macías 1

2 Methodology
Enrique Fernández-Macías, Terry Ward and Robert Stehrer 16

3 Patterns of Employment Expansion in Europe, 1995–2007
Enrique Fernández-Macías 26

4 Job Growth and Job Polarization in the United States and Europe, 1995–2007
Rachel E. Dwyer and Erik Olin Wright 52

5 Women’s Changing Job Structure in Europe: Patterns of Job Concentration, Low Pay and Welfare State Employment
Damian Grimshaw and Hugo Figueiredo 75

6 Immigration and Labour Market Segmentation in the European Union
Rafael Muñoz de Bustillo and José-Ignacio Antón 111

7 Assessing Recent Employment Shifts in Europe Using a Multidimensional Job Quality Indicator
John Hurley, Enrique Fernández-Macías and Rafael Muñoz de Bustillo 147

8 Job Quality in Post-Socialist Accession Countries
Ágota Scharle 180
9 The Institutional Context of Skills–Wages Mismatches 201
Jean-Marie Jungblut and Philip O’Connell

10 The Changing Structure of Employment during Periods of Recession and Recovery in the EU 244
Donald Storrie, Terry Ward, Robert Stehrer and John Hurley

References 279

Index 293