(d) Recoupment as predatory incentive 206
(e) The no economic sense test as a test of intent 208
(f) The predation test in the Guidance on Article 102 209
(2) Abuse of contractual rights 210

D. Intent and the risk of systematic false acquittals 211
(1) Tying 211
(a) The problem 211
(b) The enforcement risks associated with tying 212
(c) Intent and incentive for anti-competitive tying 215

E. Evidence of intent as circumstantial evidence 217
F. Conclusion 219

7 The As Efficient Competitor Test 221
A. Introduction 221
B. Predatory conduct 222
(1) Predation and exclusion of as efficient competitors 222
(2) The problem of the permissible cost benchmarks 223
C. Margin squeeze 229
D. Conditional above-cost rebates 232
(1) Protection of less efficient undertakings incompatible with Article 102 232
(2) Static application of the as efficient competitor test 235
(3) Dynamic application of the as efficient competitor test 239
E. Unconditional above-cost rebates 242
F. Mixed bundling 244
G. Exclusivity 245
