THE OFFICIAL HISTORY OF PRIVATISATION

Volume II:

David Parker
CONTENTS

List of abbreviations ix
List of figures, tables and plates xv
Acknowledgements xvii
Preface xix

1 The Privatisation Programme by June 1987 1

2 On To The Next Stage – Privatisation and the 1987–92 Government 10

The economic and political context 11
The Community Charge, Thatcher’s resignation and Major’s election 15
Once more into recession 18
Deregulation and privatisation: the background 19
The BP share offer 23
The Next Steps initiative 26
Market testing 28
Public private partnerships 30
Smaller privatisations – property sales and government agencies 32
The national engineering laboratory 35
The Tote 38
James Mackie – a near nationalisation 39
The welfare state 41

3 Privatising The British Airports Authority 47

The decision to privatise 48
Rethinking the structure 51
Ministerial disagreements 53
The Airports White Paper and the Airports Act 60
The flotation 63

4 Privatising British Steel 69

Manifest crisis 69
Disposals and joint ventures 75
Continuing problems and the future of Ravenscraig 80
CONTENTS

A difficult privatisation 82
The flotation 93
And afterwards 96

5 Privatising British Leyland 98
Reluctant support 99
Jaguar 108
Commercial vehicles, Land Rover and Leyland Bus 113
Unipart 122
Austin Rover 124
No redemption 134

6 Privatising Girobank, The Trust Ports and Short Brothers 136
Girobank 136
The trust ports 148
Short Brothers 154

7 Privatising the Water Industry in England and Wales: Early Planning 161
The structure of the water industry under public ownership 162
The decision to privatise 167
Opposition to the White Paper 179
The plans resubmitted 181
Addressing remaining challenges 184

8 Regulating the Water Industry 193
The basic structure 193
The price cap 199
Setting the K factors 202

9 Water Privatisation Achieved 219
Arranging the flotation 220
Settling outstanding issues 229
Marketing the sale 233
The flotation 238
Post sale developments 246

10 Privatising the Electricity Industry: The Origins 250
The electricity industry pre-privatisation 250
Electricity privatisation: initial ideas 253
The decision to privatise 260
Fresh impetus and the White Papers 263
The Electricity Act 272
CONTENTS

11 The Failure to Privatise Nuclear Generation 276
   Protecting nuclear energy 277
   The mounting back end costs 281
   The privatisation unravels 284
   Nuclear withdrawn 286

12 Creating Electricity Markets 293
   Administering the process 294
   The power pool 296
   The distribution and transmission contract arrangements 299
   Generation and supply contracts 301
   Competition in supply and concluding the generation contracts 304
   Regulation 307
   The distribution and supply price caps 312
   The transmission price cap 318
   The European dimension 319
   Employment relations and pensions 321
   Green issues and the implications of privatisation for the coal industry 322

13 Privatising the Electricity Industry: Capital Restructuring, the Sales and Later Developments 330
   Capital restructuring 330
   Organising the flotations 337
   Marketing the shares 339
   The employee share incentives 344
   Special shares 346
   Concluding the sale of the RECs 347
   Concluding the sale of National Power and PowerGen 355
   The sale of Scottish Power and Scottish Hydro-Electric 364
   Northern Ireland Electricity 366
   Later developments 368

14 Completing the Circle: Privatisation and the 1992–97 Government 373
   The citizen’s charter, deregulation and market testing 375
   The private finance initiative 377
   Miscellaneous small privatisations 383
   The privatisation of British Energy 388
   The one that got away – the Royal Mail 397

15 Privatising the Coal Industry 407
   The perennial loss maker 407
   The ultimate privatisation 411
   The coal crisis 416
CONTENTS

The coal review 419
Privatisation achieved 425

16 Privatising the Railways: From Rejection to Legislation 434
  BR under the first two Thatcher Governments 435
  Full privatisation emerges 444
  The White Paper and the Railways Bill 454

17 Privatising the Railways: A Privatisation too Far? 466
  Franchising the TOCs 466
  The ROSCOs and engineering 473
  Freight and parcels 479
  Railtrack 482
  Regulation 492
  The legacy 495

18 Reviving the Goose 501
  Eighteen years of privatisation 504
  The results 514

Appendix: Major Privatisations July 1987–April 1997:
A listing of the principal advisers 529

Notes 535
References 609
Index 620