

Contents

Acknowledgments xi

Contributors xiii

Introduction 3

Paulina Bren and Mary Neuburger

Part I. Living Large

1. Tuzex and the Hustler: Living It Up in Czechoslovakia 27

Paulina Bren

2. Utopia Gone Terribly Right: Plutonium's "Gated Communities" in the Soviet Union and United States 49

Kate Brown

3. "Knife in the Water": The Struggle over Collective Consumption in Urbanizing Poland 68

Kacper Pobjocki

Part II. Quality Control

4. The Taste of Smoke: Bulgartabak and the Manufacturing of Cigarettes and Satisfaction 91

Mary Neuburger

5. Risky Business: What Was Really Being Sold in the Department Stores of Socialist Eastern Europe? 116
Patrick Hyder Patterson

6. Material Harmony: The Quest for Quality in Socialist Bulgaria, 1960s–1980s 140
Rossitza Guentcheva

Part III. Kitchen Talk

7. Eating Up Yugoslavia: Cookbooks and Consumption in Socialist Yugoslavia 169
Wendy Bracewell

8. Grounds for Discontent? Coffee from the Black Market to the Kaffeeklatsch in the GDR 197
Katherine Pence

9. From Black Caviar to Blackouts: Gender, Consumption, and Lifestyle in Ceaușescu's Romania 226
Jill Massino

Part IV. To Market, to Market . . .

10. The Socialist Clearinghouse: Alcohol, Reputation, and Gender in Romania's Second Economy 255
Narcis Tulbure

11. The Extraordinary Career of Feketevágó Úr: Wood Theft, Pig Killing, and Entrepreneurship in Communist Hungary, 1948–1956 277
Karl Brown

12. Keeping It Close to Home: Resourcefulness and Scarcity in Late Socialist and Postsocialist Poland 298
Małgorzata Mazurek

Part V. Constructive Criticism

13. Kids, Cars, or Cashews? Debating and Remembering Consumption in Socialist Hungary 325
Tamas Dombos and Lena Pellandini-Simanyi

14. The House That Socialism Built: Reform, Consumption, and Inequality in Postwar Yugoslavia 351
Brigitte Le Normand
15. Shop Around the Bloc: Trader Tourism and Its Discontents on the East
German–Polish Border 374
Mark Keck-Szajbel
- Index 393