CONTENTS

The author 9
Acknowledgements 10
Foreword 11
Summary 15

1 What is Public Choice? 21
Why use economics? 21
Applying economics to politics 22
The Public Choice challenge to orthodox thinking 24
Public or private interests? 25
The calculus of voting 27
Going for votes 28
The power of Public Choice 29

2 Public Choice – the biography 30
Precursors of modern Public Choice 30
Modern Public Choice thinkers 32
Buchanan and Tullock 33
Schools and prizes 34
The power of interest groups 35
Bureaucracy and regulation 36
Recent reconsiderations 37
New approaches 38
3 Who needs government?
   The costs of decision-making
   Finding the balance
   Government failure
   Indivisibility of public goods
   Expansionary pressure
   No direct link between choice and outcome

4 How to win elections
   Voting paradoxes in action
   Other voting systems
   Rational ignorance
   The vote motive
   The drift to the middle
   The myth of the rational voter

5 The tyranny of the minorities
   Concentrated and diffused interests
   Interest group politics
   Organisational problems
   Coalition-building
   The behaviour of coalitions
   From coalitions to vote trading

6 The market for votes: logrolling
   Implicit and explicit logrolling
   The prevalence of logrolling
   Logrolling in the legislature
   The effects of logrolling
   Other problems of logrolling
7 Political profits: rent seeking
   The lure of rent seeking
   Costs and distortions
   Counting the cost
   Political costs

8 Payday for politicians
   Legislators and us
   The political income of politicians
   The dangers of the vote motive
   Restraining our leaders

9 Motivating bureaucrats
   Officials and budgets
   The sources of bureaucratic power
   Restraining the bureaucracy
   More recent questions

10 The role of constitutions
   The costs of decision-making
   The content of a constitution
   Buchanan's fiscal constitution
   Federalism
   Problems and principles

11 Achievements and issues
   Some achievements
   A question of self-interest
Constitutional issues 107
Self-interested Public Choice? 108

12 Current and future horizons 111
Reconsideration of old ideas 113
Second-generation debates 114
Third-generation frontiers 115
Game theory 116
Future potential 117

Glossary 119
Public Choice timeline 124
Further reading 127

About the IEA 130