The Language of Leaders
How top CEOs communicate to inspire, influence and achieve results

Kevin Murray
CONTENTS

Preface xv
Thanks xvii

Introduction: communicate to inspire 1

PART ONE Why you need to be a better communicator if you want to lead 9

01 Napoleon's leadership legacy 11
The shots that echo through time 11
'Create leaders everywhere!' 12
The importance of understanding the commander's intent 13
Communication is the glue that binds strategy and delivery together 14
Keep it simple 15
Free people up with a tight framework 16
Stand up for what you believe in 16
Key points from Chapter 1 18

02 Leadership transformed – life in the fishbowl 19
Perpetual communication 19
The questions that really matter 21
The new partnership driving transparency 23
Stories evolve at an incredible pace 25
Internal e-mails can be very public 26
Most leadership communication is not fit for purpose 27
Businesses are like open democracies 28
Leaders must create leaders 29
Radical transparency needs radical thinking 30
Key points from Chapter 2 32

03 The 12 principles of leadership communication 33
Be yourself, better 34
Mission and values 34
Future focus 35
Bring the outside in 35
Engage through conversations 36
Audience centricity 36
Listening 36
Point of view 37
Stories and anecdotes 37
Signals 38
Prepare properly for public platforms 38
Learn, rehearse, review, improve 38

PART TWO The fundamentals 41

04 Learn to be yourself, better 43
What followers want from leaders 44
What do leaders want from the leaders they hire? 45
Talking from the heart 46
Be visible, be human and be straight 49
To be seen as a hero, you have to be a hero 51
All-round authenticity 51
Have the confidence to be you 52
Know your strengths to be yourself better 53
How do you go about identifying your values and mission? 54
A springboard to action, a leadership platform 55
The need for emotion in business 56
Key points from Chapter 4 59

05 Provide a framework for leadership and action, through mission and values 60
Values build trust 63
Why people love a motivating mission 64
Employees want a good mission statement 66
Employees need to feel part of the story 67
The need to raise people’s sights 68
Externally, a purpose wider than profit is needed 68
Be an engine of progress for humankind 70
Involve everyone in your mission 71
Reputations at risk 72
The need for speed and the need to create leaders 73
Three examples of mission and values at work 74
Make sure the values resonate 77
In the public sector, purpose and values are all-important 78
The value of values 80
Key points from Chapter 5 81
06 Communicate the future to drive the present 82
To talk about the future, you have to be very clear about the future 83
Back to the future, over and over 84
Keep people engaged in the future 85
Your future must embrace all stakeholders 87
Four examples of how leaders bring mission, values, vision and goals together 88
Bring to life the customer’s experience 92
Key points from Chapter 6 93

07 Bring the outside in and focus on building relationships and trust 94
Loss of your ‘licence to operate’ 96
Managing the intangible asset of relationships 97
The virtuous circle in relationships 98
The real value of trust 99
Watch out for the reputation gap 100
The three dimensions of trust 100
Why leaders need to inject more character into their communication 101
The health warning on building trust 102
How to unlock the value in relationships 103
Tuning in to the court of public opinion 104
Get your hands dirty 105
If need be, actually bring the client in 106
The customer experience brings the vision alive 106
How to develop quivering antennae 107
But what do I do with the insights? 107
Key points from Chapter 7 108

08 Engage and align through conversations 109
What is an engaged employee? 110
Myth: ‘People are our only asset’ 111
Engagement at the heart of strategy 111
Choice, not change 112
The ingredients of engagement 113
Measure and monitor engagement 114
Input equals buy-in 115
Don’t dominate the conversation 116
If communication is so important, where is the training? 117
Key points from Chapter 8 119
PART THREE  Communicate, communicate, communicate  121

09  It's all about them – the need for audience centricity  123

It's not what you say; it's what they hear  124
What do you want them to think, feel and do?  126
Don't change the message; change the way you deliver it  128
How audience centricity helped to establish Canary Wharf  128
The story of the privy  130
How to think about your audience  130
Key points from Chapter 9  131

10  The inspiring effect of listening leaders  132

Be interested, be respectful and be patient  133
What stops effective listening?  135
Listen with your eyes, ears and heart  136
Listen for solutions  136
Why leaders should be passionate about bad news  137
Leaders can listen in different ways  139
When you listen, you must respond  140
The killer questions leaders should ask  141
Good listening + a bias to action = results  142
Key points from Chapter 10  143

11  Stand up to stand out – why you need a point of view  144

Using a point of view to take a stand  146
Why you need an answer that works instantly  147
The corrosive effect of not taking a stand  148
What makes a good point of view?  149
Key points from Chapter 11  150

12  The power of stories  151

Stories tell us great truths  153
Logic gets to the brain, stories get to the heart  153
The difference between a story and a narrative  155
The four types of business stories  155
Good stories are easy to find and easy to tell  159
Choosing the right story  160
One simple story can achieve more than a volume of rules  161
Key points from Chapter 12  163
13  Watch out for the undermining signals beyond the words  164

- It's written on your face  166
- People watch your body language too  166
- When being visible is the message  168
- Model the behaviours you want  169
- The meaning between the lines  170
- Symbolic acts send lasting messages  171
- Speaking off the cuff  172
- Key points from Chapter 13  173

14  Prepare properly for public platforms  174

- Get the right training and do the right preparation  176
- Remember, every word counts  177
- Simple messages repeated often  178
- Top tips for dealing with the media  179
- The essence of good presentations and speeches  181
- Communicating in a crisis  183
- And what about the web and social media and
  - Twitter and...?  187
- Key points from Chapter 14  189

PART FOUR  Conclusion  191

15  Learn, rehearse, review, improve; become fluent in the language of leaders  193

- A top-three skill of leadership, yet sadly neglected  195
- Strive to be an excellent communicator, and you will improve results  196

16  Leadership in the public sector – is it different?  199

- Inspired by (and inspiring about) making a difference  200
- Results of a study on differences in leadership traits  201
- More similarities than differences  202
- The myths of poor public sector leadership  203
- More focus on purpose and values  203
- Dealing with the complex relationships  204
- The need for collaboration is driving change  205

17  If you remember nothing else...  207
18 The tough questions all leaders need to ask of themselves 212

Are you an inspiring leader and communicator? 212

Your cut out and keep guide to being inspiring 215

Meet the leaders interviewed for this book 217

Index 262