Agnieszka Piekutowska

Labour immigration in the European Union

Warsaw 2012
Contents

Acknowledgements .................................................. 9

Introduction .......................................................... 11

CHAPTER 1
Migrations – the Notion. The Review of Migration Theories .... 19
1.1. Definition and Typology of Migration ....................... 19
1.2. Theories of Migration ........................................... 27

CHAPTER 2
The Policy of the European Union towards Legal Labour Migration from the Third Countries ............................................. 45
2.1. The Evolution of the EU Migration Policy .................. 45
2.2. Legal Grounds for the Cooperation of the EU States in Legal Migration ................................................ 47
2.3. Citizens of Norway, Liechtenstein and Iceland ............. 60
2.4. Citizens of Turkey .............................................. 61
2.5. Citizens of the Maghreb States ............................... 62
2.6. Mobility Partnership ........................................... 64
CHAPTER 3
Polish Migration Policy. Principles of Admitting Labour Migrants into Polish Labour Market .......................... 67
3.1. The Definition of Migration Policy in Poland. The Polish Migration Doctrine .......................... 67
3.2. Factors Shaping the Migration Policy of Poland ........................................ 71
3.3. The Evolution of Principles to Accept Labour Immigrants in the Polish Labour Market .......................... 80
3.4. The Principles of Admitting Foreigners to the Polish Labour Market ........................................ 83
3.5. The Labour Market Test – Recruiting Immigrants Demanded on the Labour Market .......................... 86
3.6. The Instrument of Liberalisation of the Access to the Polish Labour Market – the Declaration of Employing a Foreigner .. 87
3.7. Directions of Changes in the Liberalisation of Foreigners’ Access to the Polish Labour Market .......................... 90

CHAPTER 4
The Situation on the European Union Labour Market as a Factor Shaping Labour Immigration .......................... 93
4.1. The Definition of Demand for Work and Demand for Immigrants’ Work ........................................ 95
4.2. The Model of Labour Market vs. Labour Migration ........................................ 95
4.3. The Unemployment vs. Migration ........................................ 97
4.4. Mismatches on the Labour Market vs. Labour Migration ........................................ 98
4.5. Other Reasons for Demand for Labour Immigration ........................................ 101
4.6. Shortages on the European Labour Markets ........................................ 103
4.7. Shortage of ICT Specialists ........................................ 109
4.8. Shortages of Skilled Employees ........................................ 113
4.9. Quantitative Shortages ........................................ 115
4.10. Seasonal Shortages ........................................ 117
Contents

4.11. Research on Labour Shortages ......................... 117

CHAPTER 5
Labour Immigrants on the European Labour Market .......... 125
5.1. Activity Rate, Unemployment Rate and Employment Rate of Immigrants in the European Union ..................... 129
5.2. The Status of Immigrants on the Labour Market in the Times of Crisis ..................................................... 135
5.3. Brain Waste .................................................. 137
5.4. Working Conditions of Immigrants ........................ 142
5.5. The Attitude of Society of the Receiving Country .......... 146

Conclusions ....................................................... 149

Appendix ........................................................... 162
List of charts ................................................... 164
List of tables ................................................... 166
Bibliography ...................................................... 167