THE ECONOMICS OF ADVERTISING

by

F. W. TAYLOR
M.Sc.(Econ.), B.Com.
(Head of Commerce Department, Cheltenham Technical College)

LONDON
GEORGE ALLEN & UNWIN LTD
MUSEUM STREET
CONTENTS

PART ONE

ADVERTISING AND INDUSTRY—AN ECONOMIC ANALYSIS

CHAPTER ONE

THE DEVELOPMENT OF ADVERTISING AND ITS SIGNIFICANCE

The Rise of Modern Marketing Methods

Greater variety of production. Increased control of the market by producers. The growth of competition. Large-scale production

CHAPTER TWO

THE FUNCTIONS OF ADVERTISING (1)

INTRODUCTORY

The Claims Made for Advertising

(1) “Advertising is a means of giving information about goods and services”

Is advertising used to inform or to persuade?

(2) “Advertising is an economical method of selling”

An economical method of appealing to the million. Building business prestige

(3) “The reputation of a product is built up by advertising and a definite standard of quality is thereby assured”

(4) “Advertising increases production (i) by stimulating wants and (ii) by promoting the productive efficiency of the purchaser”

Stimulating the spirit of emulation

Increasing the productive efficiency of the purchaser

(5) “Advertising increases the efficiency of the advertiser”

Market research
CHAPTER THREE

THE FUNCTIONS OF ADVERTISING (2) 56

(6) "Advertising can be used to stabilise demand" Advertising and the trade cycle. Advertising and seasonal fluctuations. The practice of advertisers in relation to business fluctuations

(7) "The consumer derives more satisfaction from the use of advertised goods" 66

(8) "By making possible large-scale production and distribution advertising lowers costs" No generalization is possible. The difficulty of measuring the influence of advertising on costs. Advertising sometimes reduces costs. Types of large-scale businesses. Unused productive capacity

Advertising and large-scale distribution
The relation between large-scale operation and costs. Some difficulties of mass production and distribution

(9) "Advertising increases demand" 88

Department stores

CHAPTER FOUR

CRITICISMS OF ADVERTISING (1) 91

(1) "Advertising raises prices" Price may not be limited by normal cost of production. Competition in price and in quality

(2) "Advertising is necessarily uncertain in its results, is conducted inefficiently, and leads to wasteful competition"
(i) "The results of advertising are necessarily uncertain" 100
(ii) "Advertising is conducted inefficiently" Determining the advertising appropriation. The co-ordination of advertising and marketing
(iii) "Advertising leads to wasteful competition" 112
(iv) "There is excessive competition between members of the advertising business" 116
CONTENTS

CHAPTER FIVE

CRITICISMS OF ADVERTISING (2) 119

(3) "Advertisements do not give adequate and reliable information about goods"
   (i) "By advertising people are induced to prefer goods which are physically identical with others or are inferior to them"
   (ii) "Much advertising is characterized by exaggerated and misleading statements. Its appeal is emotional rather than rational"

PART TWO

ADVERTISING AND THE COMMUNITY

CHAPTER SIX

SOME SOCIAL CRITICISMS OF ADVERTISING 137

THE POWER OF ADVERTISERS TO MOULD OPINION 140

CHAPTER SEVEN

THE PRESS AND ADVERTISING 146

THE COMMERCIALIZATION OF THE PRESS 146
ADVERTISING AND EDITORIAL POLICY 151

CHAPTER EIGHT

THE RELATION OF ADVERTISING TO SOME MODERN DEVELOPMENTS IN MARKETING 158

THE INCREASING CONTROL OF MARKETING BY MANUFACTURERS 158
Wholesalers' and retailers' brands 160
The changing status of the retailer 162
Price maintenance 162
STANDARDIZATION AND BRANDING 163
CHAPTER NINE

THE ORGANIZATION OF THE ADVERTISING BUSINESS

THE ADVERTISING AGENCY 167
THE PRESS AGENT 170
THE ADVERTISING CONSULTANT 172
POSTER ADVERTISING 172
THE WORK OF ADVERTISING AGENCIES 174
THE REMUNERATION OF ADVERTISING AGENTS 179
THE AUDIT BUREAU OF CIRCULATIONS 182
ASSOCIATIONS IN THE ADVERTISING BUSINESS 185

CHAPTER TEN

CONCLUDING QUESTIONS

THE FUTURE OF ADVERTISING 189

THE POWER OF THE ADVERTISER 191
WIDER USES OF ADVERTISING 194

PART THREE

THE SCOPE AND DEVELOPMENT OF ADVERTISING—A STATISTICAL SURVEY

CHAPTER ELEVEN

THE NATIONAL EXPENDITURE ON ADVERTISING—THE DEVELOPMENT OF PRESS ADVERTISING

THE TOTAL NATIONAL EXPENDITURE 201
THE GROWTH IN EXPENDITURE 207
THE DEVELOPMENT OF PRESS ADVERTISING 209

(i) Newspaper circulations
(ii) Volume of advertising space
   London daily newspapers
   Provincial daily newspapers
(iii) Volume of advertising as indicated by space and circulations. London daily newspapers
CONTENTS

Expenditure by Individual Advertisers 217
Advertising Expense as a Proportion of the Final Selling Price 218

CHAPTER TWELVE

The Distribution of Advertising Expenditure 220

The Classes of Goods Advertised 220
Advertising Media 226
The Principal Groups of Advertisers 229

APPENDIX ONE

The Scope of an Economic Analysis of Advertising 235

APPENDIX TWO

The History of Press and Poster Advertising 240

INDEX 247