Non-Standard Employment in Europe
Paradigms, Prevalence and Policy Responses

Edited by
Max Koch
Lund University, Sweden

and

Martin Fritz
Leibniz Institute for the Social Sciences, Germany
Contents

List of Tables ix

List of Figures xii

Foreword by Richard Hyman xiii

Acknowledgements xviii

Notes on Contributors xix

List of Abbreviations xxiii

Introduction: Changing Employment Standards in a Crisis-Ridden Europe

Martin Fritz and Max Koch 1

Part I Theoretical, Economic and Political Background

1 A Conceptual Approach of the Destandardization of Employment in Europe since the 1970s

Jean-Claude Barbier 13

Introduction 13

A common general interpretation of the causes of ‘destandardization’ 15

Normality and standardization, atypicality and destandardization of employment 16

Political cultures and the transformation of meanings 21

Conclusion 25

2 Employment Standards in Transition: From Fordism to Finance-Driven Capitalism

Max Koch 29

Introduction 29

From Fordism to finance-driven capitalism 31

Employment protection 36

Conclusion 42

3 Non-Standard Employment and European Union Employment Regulation

Julia S. O'Connor 46

Introduction 46

European Union employment regulation and non-standard employment 47
Non-standard employment and EU employment policy 58
Conclusion 60

Part II Country Studies

Jorge Sola, Luis Enrique Alonso, Carlos J. Fernández Rodríguez and Rafael Ibáñez Rojo
Introduction 67
An overview of the Spanish labour market reforms 68
The expansion of non-standard employment in Spain and its consequences 70
The Spanish case in comparative perspective 74
Conclusion 79

5 ‘Flexicurity’ through Normalization? Changes in Scope, Composition and Conditions of Temporary Employment in Croatia 84
Teo Matković
Introduction 84
Labour market trends and flexicurity components 86
Changes in prevalence and patterns of temporary employment 89
Social security and job satisfaction of temporary employees 96
Conclusions 99

6 Destandardization of Employment in the UK: Issues, Politics and Policy Reinvention 103
Lefteris Kretsos and Miguel Martínez Lucio
Introduction 103
The economic and historical context 103
The development of non-standard employment (NSE) 105
Changing forms of destandardization and policy discourse 108
Conclusion 113

7 Non-Standard Employment in Poland: Option or Necessity? 117
Anna Buchner-Jezierska
Introduction 117
Structural changes in the Polish labour market after 1989 117
Non-standard employment as dehumanization of work 121
Models of non-standard employment 124
Poland as an example of the substitutive model of non-standard employment 125
Conclusion 129
8 Revival of the 'German Model'? Destandardization and the New Labour Market Regime
Hajo Holst and Klaus Dörre
Introduction
The dynamism of capitalism – dynamic (de-)standardization of employment and work
Destandardizing employment – Political reforms and new employer strategies
Destandardizing work – Erosion of trade union power and the diffusion of flexible work arrangements
The transformation of labour market policy – From status protection to activation
Conclusion: Destandardization and the new labour market regime

9 Non-Standard Employment and Perceptions of Job Characteristics and Labour Market Situation: An Intra-Nordic Comparison
Bengt Furäker
Introduction
Previous research and theoretical considerations
Data and key variables
Developments since the late 1990s
Perceptions of job characteristics and labour market situation
Concluding discussion

Part III Comparative Perspective

10 Should We Care about Part-Time Work from a Poverty Perspective? An Analysis of the EU15 Countries
Jeroen Horemans and Ive Marx
Introduction
Concepts
Institutional determinants
Part-time work and poverty empirically
Conclusion

11 Temporary Employment and Poverty in the Enlarged European Union: An Empirical and Comparative Analysis
Wim Van Lancker
Introduction
Conceptual issues
The European world of temporary employment
Temporary employment in Europe and its relationship with in-work poverty
Contents

Mechanisms and explanations 197
Multivariate analysis 199
Conclusions 206

12 Non-Standard Employment and Anomie in the EU 209
Martin Fritz
Introduction 209
Theorizing relationships between the destandardization of employment and anomie 210
Operationalization and method of analysis 214
Results and discussion 217
Conclusions 225

13 Conclusion: Non-Standard Employment: Concept, Empirical Results and Policy Implications 229
Max Koch and Martin Fritz
Country studies 231
The comparative perspective 233
Policy implications 236

Index 242