(Mis)managing Migration
Guestworkers’ Experiences with North American Labor Markets

Edited by David Griffith

School for Advanced Research Press
Santa Fe
Contents

List of Figures and Tables ix

Managing and Mismanaging Migration: An Introduction xi
  David Griffith

Part I. Critical Moments in Guestworker Program History
1. "Risk the Truck": Guestworker-Sending States and the Myth of Managed Migration 3
  Cindy Hahamovitch
2. The H-2A Program: Evolution, Impacts, and Outlook 33
  Philip Martin
3. Temporary Foreign Workers in Canada: Flexible Labor in the Twenty-First Century 63
  Josephine Smart

Part II. Fluctuations in Guestworker Programs in the Twenty-First Century
4. Managed Migration and Changing Workplace Regimes in Canadian Agriculture 83
  Kerry Preibisch
5. Guestworkers in the Fabrication and Shipbuilding Industry along the Gulf of Mexico: An Anomaly or a New Source of Labor? 107
  Diane Austin

Part III. Guest and Host Families and Communities
6. From Perfect to Imperfect Immigrants: Family Relations and the Managed Migration of Seafood Workers between Sinaloa, Mexico, and North Carolina 135
  David Griffith and Ricardo Contreras
CONTENTS

7. The Potential and Pitfalls of Social Remittances: Guatemalan Women and Labor Migration to Canada 161
   Christine Hughes

   Micah N. Bump, Elżbieta M. Gozdziak, and B. Lindsay Lowell

   Juvencio Rocha Peralta, David Griffith, and Ricardo Contreras

10. Conclusion: Promises of Guestworker Programs 225
    David Griffith

Appendix: Chronologies and Selected Characteristics of North American Guestworker Programs 233
    David Griffith, Melanie Hamilton, Josephine Smart, and Pablo Valdes Villareal

References 237
Index 263