Simone Judith Buechler

Labor in a Globalizing City

Economic Restructuring
in São Paulo, Brazil

Springer
Contents

1 Introduction ........................................................................................................................................ 1
  1.1 The Voice, Work, and Life of Maria in Favela Sul ................................................................. 3
  1.3 The Importance of Studying the Brazilian Unemployment Crisis of 1996–2003 for Understanding the Present ............................................................ 20
  1.4 The Study of the Global at the Local Level ........................................................................... 24
    1.4.1 Differential Impacts on Low-Income Women ............................................................... 25
    1.4.2 Local Sources of Power ................................................................................................. 27
  1.5 Conceptual Models ................................................................................................................. 28
    1.5.1 Questioning the Informal/Formal Sector Dyad ............................................................. 29
    1.5.2 The Fluidity of Multiple Spatial Scales ......................................................................... 31
    1.5.3 Problematizing the Fordist/Post-Fordist Dichotomy and Debates .............................. 33
  1.6 Studying Cities to Understand Economic Globalization ......................................................... 33
  1.7 Ethnography and the Extended Case-Study Method in the Context of Economic Transformation ................................................................................................................. 38
  1.8 Plan of Book .......................................................................................................................... 44
  Appendix ........................................................................................................................................ 45
  References ....................................................................................................................................... 46

2 The Spectrum of Voices in the São Paulo Economy ................................................................. 53
  2.1 Globalization ......................................................................................................................... 54
  2.2 The Unemployment Crisis ..................................................................................................... 57
  2.3 The Increasingly Precarious Nature of Employment ............................................................ 62
  2.4 Causes of Unemployment ..................................................................................................... 66
  2.5 Conclusion ............................................................................................................................. 71
  References ....................................................................................................................................... 72
3 Six Industrial Case Studies: Internal and External Flexibilization and Technological Change

3.1 São Paulo’s Industrial History
3.1.1 Female Employment in Industry
3.2 Global Industrial Processes and Restructuring in São Paulo:
An Overview
3.3 Six Industrial Case Studies: Internal and External Flexibilization and Technological Change
3.3.1 Overview of the Six Firms Studied
3.3.2 Global Links
3.3.3 Competition and the Opening of Markets
3.3.4 Effects of the Economic Crisis
3.3.5 Relocation
3.3.6 Restructuring of Production Processes
3.3.7 Employment
3.3.8 Training and Education
3.3.9 Salaries and Benefits
3.4 Real Change?
References

4 The History, Politics, and Economies of Three Communities and Their Inhabitants
4.1 Jardim Sudoeste
4.1.1 Land Tenure and Infrastructural History
4.1.2 Community Organization
4.1.3 Unemployment and Employment
4.2 Favela Sul
4.2.1 The History of Housing and Infrastructure
4.2.2 Community Organization
4.2.3 Industry and Employment
4.3 Favela Leste
4.3.1 History of Land Invasions, Housing, and Infrastructure
4.3.2 Unemployment and Employment
4.4 Analysis and Comparison of the Communities
References

5 Outsourcing Production and Commerce: A Close Examination of Unregistered Salaried Workers, Sweatshop Workers, Homeworkers, and Ambulant Vendors for Firms
5.1 Measuring the Process of Informalization: Data Sets, Growth, and Characteristics
5.1.1 Growth in Unregistered Salaried Workers for Larger Firms and in Self-Employed for Firms
5.1.2 Characteristics of Unregistered Salaried Workers and Self-Employed for a Firm: Gender, Age, Race, Immigration, and Educational Level
5.1.3 Sectors of Economic Activity
References