Contents

About the Author xi
Prologue xii
Acknowledgements xvi

1 Introducing the Field 1
   Chapter objectives 1
   Introduction: a global economy, but made of many ‘varieties of capitalism’ 1
   Introducing the two main ‘models’ of capitalism: liberal market economies versus coordinated market economies 5
   One economy or many? Globalization theory versus international and comparative business approaches 12
   Are all forms of capitalism ‘in crisis’? What is the ‘best’ model? 17
   The need to study the foundations of political economies: the rationale behind this book 20
   Conclusion: Plotting a path through complexity 21
   Further reading 23

2 Theorizing Varieties of Capitalism 25
   Chapter objectives 25
   Exploring the emergence of VoC 26
   Assessing the core claims of VoC theory 32
   Conclusion 37
   Further reading 38

3 The USA: The World’s Foremost Economic, Political and Military Power 40
   Chapter objectives 40
   Introduction 40
The emergence of the American powerhouse: rugged individualism and 'wild' capitalism 43
The beast is tamed: the new traditions of US managerial capitalism 52
From managerial to investor capitalism in the USA 60
Questioning the future of the US model 68
Conclusion: the most influential model of all? 72
Further reading 74

4 The United Kingdom: A Problematic Triumph of Finance Over Industry 77
Chapter objectives 77
Introduction 78
Empire, riches and poverty: The troubled history of a great power 79
Labour's welfare state and the establishment of national managerial capitalism 87
The 1980s: Thatcherism, neoliberal reform, and the collapse of UK industry 95
From boom to bust in the New Labour decade 102
Conclusion: An unstable, unresolved model 110
Further reading 111

5 France: Powerful Traditions Turning to Radical Change 113
Chapter objectives 113
Introduction 113
'Les trente glorieuses': The high tide of the French model of state-led organized capitalism 116
May 1968 and the shift towards socialism 124
The 'second spirit' evaporates? France faces up to a neoliberal reform 129
Conclusion: The ideal of French socialism - an unattainable dream? 139
Further reading 142

6 Germany: Europe's 'Production Machine' 144
Chapter objectives 144
Introduction 144
The historical roots of Germany's 'cooperative managerial Capitalism' (1815–1918) 147
Inter-war chaos and the descent into Fascism and war (1919–1945) 155
The 1990s and beyond: restructuring Deutschland AG? 169
Conclusion 177
Further reading 179

7 Nordic Economies: The Employee Dignity Agenda 181
Chapter objectives 181
Introduction 182
Late industrialization and capital–labour compromise: The historical bases of the Nordic models 185
Living in ‘the people’s home’: The post-war heyday of the Nordic model 188
Challenges to Scandinavian social democracy in the 1990s: towards disorganized capitalism? 192
Conclusion 198
Further reading 199

8 Russia and the Former Soviet Union: The Radical Adoption, Creation, and Abandonment of Models 201
Chapter objectives 201
An archaic system lurches into modernity: The pre-revolutionary era (1812–1917) 204
‘A modernized autocracy of great power’: The Soviet System (1921–1991) 209
Stagnation and collapse: why did the USSR fail? 217
A return to state control? Russia under Putin and the ‘strongmen’ 227
Conclusion: a powerful but unstable economic model 233
Further reading 235

9 India: A Turbulent Transformation 237
Chapter objectives 237
Introduction 237
The colonial economy of India (1757–1947) 239
The ‘slowly paced assent up the Marxist mountain’: exploring economic planning in India 244
Stagnation and corruption: The low point of the Congress era 251
'A forward march by private enterprise': reforms, privatization and liberalization 255
'The India way'? An assessment of the Contemporary Indian Economy 257
Conclusion 266
Further reading 266

10 China: Multiple Models Amid Growth and Change 268
Chapter objectives 268
Introduction 269
From early leadership to stagnation and decline 272
Vigour and chaos: the planned economy of the People's Republic of China 277
Experimenting with markets and globalization: Deng Xiaoping's 'reform and opening-up' 285
China today: winners and losers in 'market socialism' 291
Conclusion 301
Further reading 304

11 Japan: Still the World's Second Most Prominent Model? 306
Chapter objectives 306
Introduction 306
Japan's phenomenal growth: an historical overview 308
Japan in the post-war period 311
The era of high-growth 319
The 1980s: Japan triumphant; but hubris sets in 321
The 1990s: 'the lost decade' 324
Mid-2000s, and beyond - has Japan finally emerged from recession? 327
Conclusion: a troubled, yet powerful and influential model 332
Further Reading 335

12 Conclusion 336
Chapter objectives 336
Understanding continuity and change, both in institutions and in capitalism 336

References 343
Index 372