Macroeconomic Frameworks in Asia

Rodolfo Maino and Steven A. Barnett

INTERNATIONAL MONETARY FUND
Contents

Foreword vii
Preface xi
Acknowledgments xiii
Introduction xiv
Abbreviations xxv

1 Institutional Needs for Optimal Macroprudential Arrangements 1
Institutional Arrangements for Macroprudential Policy 1
Jacek Osinski
Challenges of Executing a Financial Stability Policy Objective at the Central Bank of the Philippines 6
Johnny Noe E. Ravalo
Macroprudential Policy in Mongolia 16
Byadran Lkhagvasuren

2 Optimal Integration of Macroprudential and Other Policies 22
Incorporating Macroprudential Instruments into Monetary Policy in Peru 22
Renso Rossini
Incorporating Macroprudential Instruments into Monetary Policy: Thailand's Experience 29
Chayawadee Chai-anant
Macroprudential Policies and Their Effectiveness: Hong Kong SAR 34
Choi-Hoi Hui
Macroprudential Policy Instruments in Singapore 40
Ng Chun Hwee
Incorporating Macroprudential Instruments into Monetary Policy: The Indonesian Experience 42
Juda Agung
Putting the “Macro” into Macroprudential: The Israeli Experience 49
Barry Topf
3 Implementing Macroprudential Policies

Measuring and Monitoring Systemic Risk
Radolfo Maino

The Republic of Korea: Implementing Macroprudential Policies
Jun Il KIm

India’s Experience with Macroprudential Policies
Rabi N. Mishra

Macroprudential Policy in New Zealand
Chris Hunt

Macroprudential Measures: The Bangladesh Experience
Sitangshu Kumar Sur Choudhury

Macroprudential Practice in China
Liao Min

Macroprudential Infrastructure in Cambodia
Buy Bonnang Pal

Macroprudential Policy Framework: The Republic of Korea
Tae Soo Kang

Macroprudential Framework and Measures: The Indonesian Experience
Sukarela Batmanggar

Sri Lanka’s Experience
Kumudhini Saravanamuttu

Authors’ Biographies

Boxes

Box 1. Key Desirables for Macroprudential Policy Arrangements xviii
Box 3.1. The Search for Systemic Risk Measures 68

Figures

Figure 1.1. Mongolia: Capital Adequacy of the Banking Industry 17
Figure 1.2. Mongolia: Proposed Dynamic Provisions and Loan Quality 19
Figure 2.1. Hong Kong SAR: Residential Property Prices and Transaction Volume 35
Figure 2.2. Hong Kong SAR: Credit Growth and Household Leverage 35
Figure 2.3. Hong Kong SAR: Banks’ Regulatory Reserves 38
Figure 2.4. Hong Kong SAR: Mortgage Lending and Debt-Servicing Burden 39
Figure 2.5. Hong Kong SAR: Property Market Activity 40
Figure 2.6. Monetary and Macroprudential Policy to Dampen Procyclicality 46
Figure 2.7. Managing the Trilemma in Indonesia: Incorporating Macroprudential Measures into the Monetary Framework 48
Figure 2.8. Israel: Confronting Financial Risks 52
Figure 2.9. Israel: Credit and Corporate Bonds 59
Figure 3.1. Key Elements of a Macroprudential Policy Framework 70
Figure 3.2. Three Stylized Macroprudential Policy Framework Models 72
Figure 3.3. Potential Tension between Macro- and Microprudential Authorities 73
Figure 3.4. Segments of the Indian Financial System 77
Figure 3.5. India: Effect of the Investment Fluctuation Reserve (IFR) 79
Figure 3.6. India: Build-Up Phase—Commercial Real Estate 81
Figure 3.7. India: Build-Up Phase—Retail Housing Loans 81
Figure 3.8. India: Release Phase—Commercial Real Estate 83
Figure 3.9. New Zealand: Net External Liabilities 90
Figure 3.10. New Zealand: Credit Growth by Sector 90
Figure 3.11. New Zealand: Core Funding Ratio 94
Figure 3.12. Korea: Ratio of Capital Flows to GDP and GDP Growth 112
Figure 3.13. Korea: Effect of Capital Flows on Volatility 113
Figure 3.14. Korea: Household Debt and Mortgage Loans 114
Figure 3.15. Korea: Macroprudential Response to Capital Flow Volatility 114
Figure 3.16. Korea: Effect of Macroprudential Policies on Foreigners’ Investments 115
Figure 3.17. Korea: Effect of Macroprudential Tools on Debt 116
Figure 3.18. Korea: Housing Indicators (Seoul Area) before and after Loan Regulation Tightening 117
Figure 3.19. Operating Mechanism and Effectiveness of Countercyclical Buffers 119
Figure 3.20. Korea: Mortgage Loan Fluctuations 119
Figure 3.21. Bank Indonesia’s Financial System Stability Framework 122
Figure 3.22. Financial Safety Net Player in Indonesia 124
Figure 3.23. Sri Lanka: Cyclical Trends in Private Sector Credit Growth 132
Figure 3.24. Sri Lanka: Financial Stress Indicator 132
Figure 3.25. Sri Lanka: Macroprudential Indicators 133
Tables

Table 1. The Conceptual Basis of Macroprudential Instruments xvi
Table 2.1. Post–Global Crisis Macroprudential Policy Measures 50
Table 3.1. Banks’ Exposure to Commercial Real Estate 80
Table 3.2. Banks’ Exposure to Retail Housing Loans 82
Table 3.3. Differential Risk Weight for Retail Housing Loans 82
Table 3.4. Coordinated Policy Response 85
Table 3.5. Determinants of Loan Size 120
Table 3.6. Division of Roles and Responsibilities among Financial Safety Net Players in Indonesia 125
Table 3.7. Key Content of Indonesian Financial Safety Net Law Final Draft 126
Table 3.8. Coordination Mechanisms among Financial Safety Net Players in Indonesia 127
Table 3.9. Post–Global Crisis Macroprudential Policy Measures 128