The Dynamics of Economic Growth
Policy Insights from Comparative Analyses in Asia

Vu Minh Khuong
National University of Singapore

Edward Elgar
Cheltenham, UK • Northampton, MA, USA
Contents

Foreword by Dale W. Jorgenson vii
Preface x
Abbreviations xiv

1 Introduction 1
   1.1 The Asian economic growth saga 2
   1.2 The need for better understanding economic growth in Asia 5
   1.3 About this book 7
   1.4 Chapter outlines 10
   1.5 Concluding remarks 14
   Appendix 1.1: Emotion and enlightenment as driving forces of Asia's success 16

2 Developing Asia in the global dynamics of catching up and falling behind 24
   2.1 Introduction 24
   2.2 The per capita income ranking exercise 25
   2.3 The global dynamics of catching up and falling behind, 1990–2010: performance by group 29
   2.4 The global dynamics of catching up and falling behind, 1990–2010: performance by economy 36
   2.5 The performance of Developing Asia in the global dynamics of catching-up: a closer look 58
   2.6 Summary 63

3 The rise of Asia 65
   3.1 Introduction 65
   3.2 The rise of Developing Asia in world GDP 68
   3.3 Private consumption 77
   3.4 Government consumption 86
   3.5 Fixed investment 95
   3.6 Exports and imports of goods and services 104
   3.7 The rise of Developing Asia and globalization: selected indicators 121
3.8 Insights from the combined results
Appendix 3.1: Developing Asia as a driver of globalization: selected indicators

4 Sources of Developing Asia’s economic growth: insights from the standard growth accounting approach
4.1 Introduction
4.2 Sources of GDP growth in Developing Asia
4.3 Sources of ALP growth in Developing Asia
4.4 ALP as a driver of GDP growth in Developing Asia
4.5 The driving forces behind Developing Asia’s leading economic performance
4.6 Sources of economic growth, 1990–2010: a global picture
4.7 Summary of key results
Appendix 4.1: The accounting frameworks for decomposing the sources of economic growth
Appendix 4.2: Dataset for the growth decomposition exercise
Appendix 4.3: The shares of ALP and employment in GDP growth
Appendix 4.4: Sources of Developing Asia’s lead in GDP growth (weighted means), 1990–2010

5 Sustaining high economic growth in Developing Asia: strategic insights and a catch-up policy framework
5.1 Introduction
5.2 The pattern of Developing Asia’s economic growth and policy insights
5.3 A catch-up policy framework
5.4 The catch-up policy framework in action: illustrative evidence from China and India during 1990–2010
5.5 Conclusion

References
Index