Contents

List of Figures ix
List of Tables xi
List of Contributors xiii

1. Innovation Studies: Towards a New Agenda 1
   Jan Fagerberg, Ben R. Martin, and Esben S. Andersen
   1.1. Introduction 1
   1.2. Understanding Innovation: A Brief Historical Sketch 2
   1.3. An Evolving Agenda 5
   1.4. Achievements and Challenges 7
   1.5. Towards a New Agenda? 10

Part I. Evolution, Developments, and Key Issues

2. Innovation Studies: A Personal Interpretation of 'The State of the Art' 21
   Bengt-Ake Lundvall
   2.1. Introduction 21
   2.2. Learning from Project Research 22
   2.3. The Theoretical Core of Innovation Studies 32
   2.4. Innovation Studies: Drawing the Boundaries to Adjacent Fields 45
   2.5. Opening Up the Borders of Innovation Studies 49
   2.6. The Future of Innovation Studies 59

3. Innovation, Work Organization, and Systems of Social Protection 71
   Edward Lorenz
   3.1. Introduction 71
   3.2. Work Organization and Organizational Design 72
   3.3. National Systems of Innovation and Competence Building: What Are the Relevant Institutions? 77
   3.4. Regions and Nations: The Need for a Multi-Level Governance Framework 80
   3.5. Policies for Organizational Change and Innovation 82
Contents

Carlota Perez
4.1. Looking at the Question
4.2. The Paradigm Shift and Its Effects on the Conditions of Innovation for and by the Poor (and the Weak)
4.3. The Big Moving Picture
4.4. Does (or Should) Evolutionary Economics also Evolve?
4.5. In Conclusion

5. Innovation, Evolution, and Economics: Where We Are and Where We Should Go
Giovanni Dosi
5.1. Introduction
5.2. Coordination and Change
5.3. Towards an Alternative Interpretation: The Economy as a Complex Evolving System
5.4. The Structure of Technological Knowledge and the Process of Technological Innovation
5.5. Micro-Foundations: Cognition, Behaviours, and Learning in Complex Evolving Environments
5.6. Towards a Soundly Micro-Founded Evolutionary Macroeconomics
5.7. Conclusions

6. Is Innovation Always Good?
Luc Soete
6.1. Introduction
6.2. Innovation, Planned Obsolescence, and Unsustainable Consumption Growth
6.3. From Innovation for the Tip to the Bottom of the Income Pyramid
6.4. From Financial Innovations to Systemic Failure
6.5. Conclusions

Part II. Challenges for Innovation Studies in the Years Ahead

7. Innovation Studies at Maturity
W. Edward Steinmueller
7.1. Introduction
7.2. The Argument for Innovation Studies as Normal Science