Introduction 1

The changing nature of global capitalism 1
The essays 4
Understanding the changes 7

PART I
Globalisation 17

The nation-state and the capitalist world economy 22
Keynes and the national economy 27
The boom and after: the disintegration of the UK economy 33
Conclusions: consequences for left strategy 41

2 Capital, labour and the state in the world economy (1989) 45

Two problematic concepts 46
Uneven development in the present period 50
Is there any alternative to the global resurgence of capitalism? 53

3 Responses to globalisation: a critique of progressive nationalism (2000) 56

The globalisation thesis and its critics 57
Empirical arguments on globalisation 59
Theorising the state and the world economy 61
Bringing labour back in 65
Conclusion 68
PART II

Britain and the world economy

4 Keynes and the policy of practical protectionism (1988)
   National self-sufficiency
   The General Theory and the national economy
   Three policy cases
   Conclusions: a practical protectionism for the 1980s

5 Britain in the world economy: national decline, capitalist success? (1995)
   UK trade and capital flows
   De-industrialisation and foreign direct investment
   The role of the City
   Policy implications: is there an alternative?

6 Britain and Europe: class, state and the politics of integration (2007)
   Marxist theory and European integration: a brief history
   What sort of Europe? From the struggle for socialism to the defence of ‘social’ capitalism
   The class politics of Britain and the EU

PART III

Global capitalism and development

7 Capitalism restored: East-Central Europe in the light of globalisation (1998)
   World capitalism and the Soviet system, 1948–89
   Foreign capital in East-Central Europe since 1989
   The treatment of foreign capital in models of economic system change
   Class, state and national development: towards a more critical analysis
   Prognoses and conclusions

8 Halfway to paradise? Making sense of the semiperiphery (2009)
   Developmentalism, dependency and world-systems theory: genesis of the concept of semiperiphery
   The semiperiphery as an explanatory concept
   Understanding global capitalism differently
   Conclusions
CONTENTS

9 The developmental state under global neoliberalism (2008) 152

Neoliberalism 154
Globality 157
The state 160
Developmentalism 164
Bringing class back in: or, who is doing what to whom? 168

PART IV

The recent crisis 173

10 Confronting the crisis: a class analysis (2010) 175

What sort of crisis? 176
A new age of finance 178
Global crisis – or crisis of globalisation? 183
Neoliberalism and the crisis 186
Conclusion: a class response to the crisis 190

11 Cutting government deficits: economic science or class war? (2011) 193

The political economy of state spending in historical perspective 194
The course of the crisis: government deficits and the bond markets 198
Resolving the crisis: restoring class rule 201

12 The crisis and the global South: from development to capitalism (2011) 206

The rise and fall of developmentalism 207
Normal capitalism in the global South 210
The crisis of 2007–8 and after 211

Bibliography 214
Index 233