Reinhard H. Schmidt, Hans Dieter Seibel, and Paul Thomes

From Microfinance to Inclusive Banking

Why Local Banking Works

Edited by
Sparkassenstiftung für internationale Kooperation

WILEY

WILEY-VCH Verlag GmbH & Co. KGaA
I. INTRODUCTION: REFLECTIONS ON MICROFINANCE

1 Microfinance – banks – savings and cooperative banks

    1.1 Microfinance: From humble beginnings to hype and disenchantment 3
    1.2 Banks as providers of microfinance services 7
    1.3 The relevance of savings banks and cooperative banks 8
    1.4 Conclusions and consequences 10

2 Basic definitions

    2.1 Why precise definitions are desirable but difficult to provide 13
    2.2 Terms that need to be defined 14

3 The broader context of social and development-oriented banking

    3.1 How new forms of financial institutions emerge and survive 21
    3.2 The role of the state and other “third parties” 23
    3.3 The art of financial institution building 25
    3.4 The objectives of socially-oriented, inclusive financial institutions 31

4 Does history matter? 35

5 Our main propositions 39

II. GERMAN SAVINGS BANKS AND CREDIT COOPERATIVES – A BLUEPRINT FOR INCLUSIVE FINANCE?

1 Objectives – Why a historical perspective? Why credit cooperatives and savings banks? Why Germany? 43

2 Saving and borrowing – A socioeconomic historical approach

    2.1 Satisfying needs – A vital challenge 49
    2.2 Saving and borrowing – An everyday exercise 53
    2.3 Winds of change – Pawnshops, widows' and orphans' funds, and savings and loan societies as innovative inclusive instruments of change management 55
    2.4 Savings as a fundamental condition for change and growth 56
3 "Out of the box" – An international comparative survey of 19th century savings-based microfinance trends 59
4 The emergence of the German savings bank model – Inclusion from the beginning 65
   4.1 Divergence and convergence – Comparing the early savings banks 68
   4.2 Diffusion in the wake of early industrialization and growing incomes 72
   4.3 The Prussian Savings Bank Regulations of 1838 – A legal template for future development 77
   4.4 Urgent need for profound change – Towards the economic takeoff 81
   4.5 The savings business around 1900 – Cradle-to-grave incentives 84
   4.6 The credit business – A fluctuating and attractive combination of microfinance features 95
   4.7 Debit and credit – Reserves and non-profit appropriation 107
   4.8 Administrative and organizational success factors – Supervision, skill enhancement, and networks 108
5 Case study – The Aachen Association for Promoting Industriousness [Der Aachener Verein zur Beförderung der Arbeitsamkeit]: A holistic local inclusion approach 111
   5.1 “Money and Intellect” – An integrated welfare concept combining insurance, savings, and education 112
   5.2 The savings bank of the Aachen Association – A successful experiment 116
   5.3 The end – The disastrous consequences of World War I 124
   5.4 Evaluation – The holistic concept as a role model? 125
6 "Out of the box" – An international comparative survey of 19th-century credit-based microfinance trends 131
7 The emergence of the German credit cooperative model – Tradition meets innovation 135
   7.1 The liberal approach – Schulze-Delitzsch and his “Volksbanks” (People’s Banks) 137
   7.2 The Christian charity approach – Raiffeisen and his fight against rural usury 144
   7.3 Dispute over principles – Jockeying for position and an optimization process 147
   7.4 Wilhelm Haas and other agents of change – Salt in the soup? 150
   7.5 Case study – The Hachenburg Credit Cooperative [Vorschussverein Hachenburg] 153
   7.6 Volksbanks and Raiffeisen cooperatives – A remarkable success story 158
Table of Contents

VII

8 Savings banks, credit cooperatives, and commercial banks –
   Complementarity versus rivalry  163

9 Summary, conclusions, and outlook – Are there lessons to be learned from the History Lab?  169
   9.1 Organizational findings  169
   9.2 Practical findings  171
   9.3 Connecting past and future  174
   9.4 Overview – Constitutive elements of local banking in Germany:
      From microfinance to inclusive banking  177

III. GLOBAL DEVELOPMENT AND CURRENT STATUS OF MICROFINANCE PRACTICE

1 An overview of institutions, concepts, and approaches  183

2 The spectrum of microfinance institutions  187
   2.1 A typology of microfinance institutions  187
   2.2 Informal microfinance  190
   2.3 Community-based microfinance, or village “banks”  198
   2.4 Cooperative microfinance: What role for government?  212
   2.5 Microfinance banks  226

3 Sources of data on access to finance  265
   3.1 Self-reporting by individual institutions  266
   3.2 Global reporting by networks of financial institutions  269
   3.3 Global data sets  274
   3.4 Market saturation  280

4 Microfinance as a field of international aid and cooperation  283
   4.1 Early forms of development finance and the emergence of microfinance  284
   4.2 The turn towards modern microfinance  292
   4.3 Strategies for creating efficient and sustainable microfinance institutions  296
   4.4 Commercial microfinance and its challenges  308
   4.5 Why microfinance is losing its clout  314

IV. LOCAL FINANCIAL INSTITUTIONS – LEARNING FROM THE HISTORY OF SAVINGS BANKS AND COOPERATIVE BANKS FOR DEVELOPMENT POLICY TODAY

1 Summing up the historical survey  321

2 The general relevance of the historical survey for the design of development projects  325
3  The direct relevance of the historical survey for the design of development projects 331
4  A concluding comparative remark and a plea for diversity of banking structures 337
5  Summing up: Insights and recommendations for national and international decision makers based on 200 years of inclusive microfinance and local banking history 343
References 347