Ethnic Chinese Entrepreneurship in Malaysia
On contextualisation in international business studies

Michael Jakobsen
Contents

List of figures xi
List of tables xiii

Introduction 1

PART I
The global context 7

1 Visualising the global economy 9

1.1 Decoupling: real possibility or intellectual exercise? 10
1.2 Beyond decoupling: towards a 'spiky' or 'flat' perception of the global economy? 12
1.3 From 'spiky' or 'flat' economies to differentiated market analyses 13
1.4 From a differentiated global market to a glocalised economy 15
1.5 The changing contemporary nation-state 17
1.6 Expanding globalisation and contracting nation-states 20
1.7 Towards a disaggregation of nation and state? 22
1.8 Ethnicity and sustainability of the nation-state 25

2 Employing an international business approach when studying the triangular matrix of glocalisation 29

2.1 Societal embeddedness in economic approaches 32
2.2 Zooming in on institutional theory 33
2.3 Informal institutions: the 'black hole' in institutional theory? 34
2.4 A note on culture in international business literature 38
PART II

The regional context

3 The Malaysian state and economy in the Southeast Asian region

3.1 Malaysia: a declining ‘hill’? 48
3.2 From reaction to proaction: the Malaysian federal government’s response 49
3.3 Measuring the economic performance of Malaysia in a Southeast Asian context 51
3.4 A triangulation approach 54
3.5 Penang’s economic and political environment in a Malaysian context 56
  3.5.1 Societal organisation in Penang 57
  3.5.2 The political environment in Penang 59
  3.5.3 The economic organisation of Penang 59
3.6 Penang state government’s economic policies (2000 and onwards) 61
3.7 Industrial facilitators 62
  3.7.1 investPenang 62
  3.7.2 Penang institute 63
3.8 From framework to substance 64

4 Towards an understanding of ethnic Chinese in Southeast Asia

4.1 Southeast Asian ethnic Chinese and diasporic practices 68
4.2 The notion of contemporary Chinese-ness in Southeast Asia 70
4.3 Grounded cosmopolitanism among Southeast Asian ethnic Chinese 74

PART III

The local context

5 ‘Divided thou shall be’: understanding ethnic divisions in Malaysia

5.1 The relationship between Malays and Chinese according to Mahathir 81
5.2 Looking beyond Mahathir: the wider political and economic ramifications of the inter-ethnic deadlock 83

5.3 Transforming the national political economy: the latest developments on the affirmative action policy 84

5.4 Where to go from here? 87

6 Ethnic Chinese entrepreneurship in Penang 90

6.1 SMEs in Penang 92

6.2 Ethnic Chinese entrepreneurship in Penang: on SMEs and SMIs 94

6.3 The relationship between SMEs and PLCs 96

6.4 Exploring the mind-set of ethnic Chinese entrepreneurs 99

7 Navigating the socio-economic landscape in Penang: three case studies 103

7.1 CKS Engineering Sdn. Bhd. 103

7.1.1 Company history 103

7.1.2 Ownership structure 104

7.1.3 Network practices and relations to domestic and global markets 105

7.2 RC Precision Engineering Sdn. Bhd. 106

7.2.1 Company history 106

7.2.2 Ownership structure 107

7.2.3 Network practices and relations to domestic and global markets 108

7.2.4 Relations to public and non-public economic facilitators 108

7.3 Pentamaster Corporation Bhd. 109

7.3.1 Company history 109

7.3.2 Ownership structure 110

7.3.3 Network practices and relations to domestic and global markets 111

7.4 Innovation and entrepreneurship: how to get out of the middle income trap 113
PART IV
The glocalisation of context: some concluding remarks 119

8 On constructing an etic and emic approach when employing international business theories on ethnic Chinese business practices 121

8.1 Global fragmentation of local markets 125
8.2 Contextual imperatives in relation to IB theories 127
8.3 Integrating the four constituent parts: some concluding remarks 129

Bibliography 135
Index 143