Making the Empire Work

Labor and United States Imperialism

Edited by Daniel E. Bender and Jana K. Lipman

NEW YORK UNIVERSITY PRESS

New York and London
CONTENTS

Acknowledgments vii

Introduction: Through the Looking Glass: U.S. Empire through the Lens of Labor History 1
Daniel E. Bender and Jana K. Lipman

PART I. SOLIDARITIES AND RESISTANCE

1. The Wages of Empire: Capitalism, Expansionism, and Working-Class Formation 35
   Julie Greene

2. Revolutionary Currents: Interracial Solidarities, Imperial Japan, and the U.S. Empire 59
   Moon-Ho Jung

3. The Secret Soldiers’ Union: Labor and Soldier Politics in the Philippine Scout Mutiny of 1924 85
   Christopher Capozzola

4. The Photos That We Don’t Get to See: Sovereignties, Archives, and the 1928 Massacre of Banana Workers in Colombia 104
   Kevin Coleman

PART II. INTIMACIES IN COLONIAL SPACES

5. Sexual Labor and the U.S. Military Empire: Comparative Analysis of Europe and East Asia 137
   Seungsook Moon

6. Making Aloha: Lei and the Cultural Labor of Hospitality 161
   Vernadette Vicuña Gonzalez
PART III. MIGRATION AND MOBILIZING LABOR FOR THE EMPIRE

7. The Advantages of Empire: Chinese Servants and Conflicts over Settler Domesticity in the “White Pacific,” 1870–1900
Andrew T. Urban

8. Empire and the Moving Body: Fermin Tobera, Military California, and Rural Space
Dorothy B. Fujita-Rony

9. Slavery’s Stale Soil: Indentured Labor, Guestworkers, and the End of Empire
Cindy Hahamovitch

PART IV. IMPERIAL LABOR AND CONTROL IN THE TROPICS

Andrew Zimmerman

11. Progressive Empire: Race and Tropicality in United Fruit’s Central America
Jason M. Colby

Augustine Sedgewick

Lauren Hirshberg

About the Contributors

Index