The Poverty of Work

Selling Servant, Slave and Temporary Labor on the Free Market

By

David Van Arsdale
Contents

Preface ix
Acknowledgements xii
List of Figures and Tables xiv

1 A Perfect Marriage: Flexible Employment Standards and the Staffing Industry 1
   Flexible Fields, Flexible Factories 1
   The Globalization of Flexible Employment Standards 4
   Non-corporate Employment Agencies 6
   Corporate Employment Agencies 8
   Aim of the Book 14
   Organization and Methodology 15

2 Inside Employment Agency Labor: Participant Observation Experiences 18
   Anatomy of a Corporate Employment Agency 19
   Getting Hired, Demographics, Health Risks 21
   Waiting Rooms, Dispatch Anxiety, Low-Wages 24
   The Dawn of Virtual Waiting Rooms 29
   Dispatch from a Corporate Employment Agency 30
   Waiting for Work 34
   On a Ticket 35
   The Revolving Door 37
   “Why Don't You Get a Job Someplace Else?” 38
   “Catch 22”: Trapped in Temping 40
   The Paradox of Flexible Labor 42
   The Growth of Unregulated Hiring 45
   Dispatch from a Non-corporate Employment Agency 47
   Temping at the Food Factory 48
   Temping at the Plastics Factory 53

3 Exchange Alley: The Origins of Employment Agencies 57
   A Labor of Investment Capitalism 57
   Early Contradictions in At-Will Employment Relations: Registering Servants and Masters 59
   The Privatization of Employment Agencies 64
   Case Study: The Intelligence Office for Seamen 65
Growth and Competition among Intelligence Offices in London 70
Public Criticism of Employment Agencies in London 76
Adam Smith on Intelligence Offices 83

4 From Slave Agency to Temporary Help: The Historical Development of Employment Agencies 85
The Labor Trade West of London 85
Marketing Racial and Ethnic Employment Statuses and the Limitation of Harriet Beecher Stowe’s Theory on the Labor Trade 90
The Rise of Benevolent Intelligence Offices 97
The Anti-slavery Intelligence Office 98
The Emigrant Depot Intelligence Office 104
Selling Bridget 110
Trafficking Women into Brothels 117
From Intelligence Office to Employment Agency 121
The Discontents of Employment Agency Labor 124
From Employment Agency to Temporary Help 130
Misrepresenting Intelligence Offices in North American Literary Rhetoric 134

5 The Poverty of Work: Shifting from Jobs that Solved Poverty to Jobs that Make It 139
Returning to the Contemporary Labor Trade 139
The Changing Nature and Provisions of Work 140
The Production of the Idea of Work as Solution to Poverty 145
The Production of Poverty in Work 151
Selling the Unemployed as Leverage for Capital Gains 157

6 Preventing the Reproduction of Deprived Employment Statuses among Temporary Laborers 163
The Pitfalls of Unregulated Triangular Employment Exchanges: Revising Stowe’s Thesis on the Labor Trade 167
Solutions for Preventing Deprived Employment 176
Legislative Solutions 177
Community and Organized Labor Actions 180

Appendix 187
International Staffing Companies, Economic Overview 187
U.S. Staffing Companies, Economic Overview 189

Bibliography 191
Index 205