When Solidarity Works

Labor–Civic Networks and Welfare States in the Market Reform Era

CHEOL-SUNG LEE

The University of Chicago
Contents

List of Figures
List of Tables
Preface
List of Abbreviations

PART I

1. Introduction
2. Revisiting Theories of the Welfare State in Developing Countries
3. Theoretical Discussion: The Structures of Associational Networks and the Politics of the Welfare State

PART II

4. The Origin of Top-Down Solidarity in South Korea
5. Embeddedness, Cohesiveness, and the Politics of Social Policy Expansion in South Korea: Universal vs. Selective Reforms
6. The Politics of Retrenchment under Market Reforms

PART III

7. Market-Oriented Reforms of the Welfare State and Union Responses in Brazil and Argentina
8. Market-Oriented Reforms of the Welfare State and Union Responses in Taiwan and South Korea
9. Associational Networks and the Welfare State in Argentina, Brazil, South Korea, and Taiwan
10. Conclusion
Contents

Appendix A Profiles of Labor and Civic Activists from Field Interviews 293

Appendix B Measurements of Embeddedness and Cohesiveness in Associational Network Data 319

Appendix C Network-Informed Strategic Actions of the State and Unions: The Structures of Retrenchment and Expansion Games 322

Appendix D Supplementary Analyses: South Korean Associational Networks in the 2000s 334

Appendix E Generalization: Findings from Cross-National Quantitative Analyses 344

Notes 347

Bibliography 381

Index 401