Contents

List of figures ix
List of tables xi
Acknowledgements xii

1 Introduction 1
  1.1 Questions and arguments 1
  1.2 Outline of the book 5

2 Disentangling the welfare-globalization nexus in the developing world 10
  2.1 Theories and evidence 10
  2.2 Changing trend of social spending in the developing world 12
  2.3 Rethinking welfare protection in a globalizing economy 14
  2.4 Globalization's equalization effect and welfare restructuring 18
  2.5 An endogenous model of political support 20
  2.6 Local dynamics of institutional change in East Asia and China 23

3 Global dynamics of welfare restructuring in China: an overview 28
  3.1 Social protection under Mao 28
  3.2 Changing trend of welfare spending since 1978 29
  3.3 Globalization and changing industrial structure 31
  3.4 Changing structure of social preferences 36
  3.5 Changing strategy of political support 40
  3.6 Move to the middle: balancing social protection in an integrated economy 41
Contents

4 Construction of social assistance 45
   4.1 Introduction 45
   4.2 Social relief program prior to reform 46
   4.3 1993–1997: local experiments of urban social assistance reform 46
   4.4 1998–2003: institutionalization of urban social assistance program 48
   4.5 2004–2006: overcoming the urban–rural divide 51
   4.6 Since 2007: building a universal and integrated social assistance program 54
   4.7 Summary 56

5 Restructuring of social security 58
   5.1 Introduction 58
   5.2 The pension program prior to reforms 59
   5.3 1986–1997: local experiments 60
   5.4 1998–2002: institutionalization of urban pension program and stagnation in rural areas 65
   5.5 2003–2009: overcoming the urban–rural divide 70
   5.6 Since 2009: building a universal and integrated pension system 77

6 Regional variations of welfare protection 81
   6.1 Introduction 81
   6.2 Model specification and variable description 83
   6.3 Results and discussions 92
   6.4 Conclusion 103

7 Conclusion 104
   7.1 Rethinking the globalization–welfare nexus 105
   7.2 Rethinking politics and markets in a globalized economy 106
   7.3 Rethinking the East Asian (and Chinese) development model 110
   7.4 Rethinking the nature of the Chinese regime 112

References 115
Index 127