

The Chinese and Indian Corporate Economies

A Comparative History of their Search for Economic Renaissance and Globalization

Rajeswary Ampalavanar Brown

Contents

List of tables	xii
List of charts	xiii
Preface	xiv
Abbreviations	xvi
1 Two major Asian peripheries, China and India, and their distinct corporate economies: The silent tongue of “one Asia or many”	1
2 The restructuring of China’s state-owned enterprises since 1978	30
3 Chinese retailers abroad and Chinese consumption patterns at home: The prosperous age of Prada and a sorcery of branded luxury	66
4 The silent vulgar tongue: Guanxi and trust in Chinese corporations	77
5 Financial reform in China: Banking, state and efficiency	84
6 The development of the Chinese stock market and globalization of China’s corporations and financial markets	115
7 The role of labour in agrarian and industrial dynamics of change	153
8 Utilitarian blindness to innovation mistaken for sight in China’s search for and acquisition of Western magic pagodas	186
9 China and globalization: Strategy and scope	203

10	Corporate institutions and law in India: State, space and the capitalists	234
11	Tata & Sons: Appropriating and keeping the state in space	282
12	Indian financial institutions: Law, renaissance, illusions and realities	302
13	Rethinking the corporate and financial institutions of Islam through the moral economy of the waqf	350
14	From empire to independence to economic liberalism and globalization: Indian labour's journey	377
15	The Chinese and Indian corporate economy: A radical construction of law, the state and corporations	412
	Conclusion: State evasion, the unruly and legal porousness	437
	Glossary	453
	Bibliography	455
	Index	467