CANONICAL AUTHORS IN CONSUMPTION THEORY

Edited by Søren Askegaard and Benoît Heilbrunn
CONTENTS

List of illustrations xi
List of contributors xii
Preface xix

PART I
Introduction 1

1 In search of consumption . . . 3
   Søren Askegaard and Benoît Heilbrunn

PART II
Political economy and the quest for value 13

2 Marx, commodity and consumer culture 15
   A. Fuat Finat

3 Why bother with Nietzsche? 23
   James Fitchett

4 Beyond disenchantment: Weber and the search for legitimacy 29
   Melanie Wallendorf

5 Karl Polanyi: whence the marketing mind? 34
   Dannie Kjeldgaard
PART III
Anthropology and consumption

6 Marcel Mauss: the gift that moves . . .
   Eric J. Arnould

7 Thick prescription: notes on the influence of Clifford Geertz on CCT
   John E. Sherry, Jr.

8 Mary Douglas: consumption codes, meaning structures and classification systems
   Ian Woodward

9 In defense of cultural economy: Marshall Sahlins
   Eric J. Arnould

PART IV
System and structuration

10 Bronislaw Malinowski, or the elementary material and symbolic forms of production, exchange and consumption
   Dominique Desjeux

11 Claude Lévi-Strauss and the structural fabric of meaning
   Benoît Heilbrunn

12 Talcott Parsons: structural foundations for cultural sociology
   Melanie Wallendorf

13 The relevance of consumption in Niklas Luhmann’s theory of society
   Kai-Uwe Hellmann and Marius K. Luedicke

PART V
Identity trajectories

14 Mind, self and consumption: George Herbert Mead
   Cele Otnes

15 Sartre’s insights for identity, desire, the gift and posthumanism
   Russell Belk

16 Paul Ricoeur, vigil of the self
   Benoît Heilbrunn
17 Habermas: reigniting enlightenment reason

Jeff B. Murray

PART VI
Civilization and history

18 Remembering Walter Benjamin, or the death of the last intellectual

Robert Kozinets

19 Norbert Elias: figurations and consumption

Robin Canniford

20 Braudel's notions of time, capitalism and market

Eminegül Karababa

PART VII
The language of commodities

21 Shopping with Charles Peirce: from sign meaning to sign degeneracy in the marketplace

Kent Grayson

22 Roland Barthes: the (anti-)structuralist

Luca M. Visconti

23 Jean Baudrillard: the Nietzsche of our times(?)

Per Østergaard (with a little help from his friends)

24 Bruno Latour: philosopher of togetherness in action

Domen Bajde

PART VIII
Power games

25 Adorno, Horkheimer and the audacity of reason

Jeff B. Murray

26 Pierre Bourdieu: luminary or elitist? Capital and the project of consumption

Christina Goulding

27 Producing Foucauldians: consumer culture theory and the analytics of power

Craig J. Thompson
28  De Certeau: a thinker of the everyday
   Véronique Cova and Nil Özfaglar-Toulouse

29  Judith Butler: gender performativity and heterosexual hegemony
   Pauline Maclaran

PART IX
The imaginary and humanity

30  Freud the scientist?
   John Desmond

31  The consumer as sovereign: the general economy of Georges Bataille
   Christian Jantzen

32  Edgar Morin: the uniduality of the magical and the real
   Soren Askegaard

33  Beyond reductionism, constructivism and arbitrary sampling in consumer research thanks to Castoriadis
   Dominique Bouchet

34  Žižek: a pervert’s guide to the libidinal narcissistic economy
   Alan Bradshaw

PART X
Postscript

35  To ERR is human: on failing to read (and forgetting to remember) the classics
   Stephen Brown

Index