Liberalism 2.0 and the Rise of China
Global Crisis, Innovation and Urban Mobility

David Tyfield
Contents

Outline of the book ix
List of figures xiii
List of tables xiv

Introduction 1

PART I
The problem: the global system crisis of neoliberalism 5

1 Neoliberalism, knowledge and the global system 7

2 Four Great Challenges 24

3 The genealogy of the emerging capitalist present 46

PART II
Where are we? Innovation in China 69

4 Will China rule the world? The emergence of Chinese capitalism 71

5 The supply side: debates and paradoxes regarding Chinese innovation upgrade 89

6 The unexpected innovation hegemon 106

7 The demand side: the emergence of risk/innovation-class in China 122
Contents

8 The emerging historic bloc: China’s middle risk/innovation-class 141

PART III
Where are we going? Sharing and haggling the long complex journey to green urban mobility systems transition in China 167

9 Electric vehicle innovation-as-politics in China 169

10 Towards mobility-as-a-service 194

PART IV
What can be done? Conclusion 217

11 Liberalism 2.0 and beyond 219

Index 253