List of Figures p. viii
List of Tables p. x
List of Contributors p. xi
Series editors’ preface p. xvi
Preface and acknowledgments p. xviii
Introduction: Japan’s new ruralities p. 1
Transformations in the primary sector p. 25
From agribusiness to deer hunter: "placing" food industrialization and multispecies health in Tokachi, Hokkaido p. 27
Corporatization as hybridization in rural Japan: the case of Iwasaka in Shiga Prefecture p. 48
Sea pineapples in troubled waters: on the local-global interdependencies of the sea squirt (hoya) industry in the aftermath of the 3.11 disaster p. 65
Reclaiming the global countryside? Decline and diversification in Saga Genkai coastal fisheries p. 82
Political innovations in rural Japan p. 101
Local renewables: Japan’s energy transformation and its potential for the remaking of rural communities p. 103
Empowering rural cooperation: effects of agricultural policy intervention on rural social capital p. 124
Sustaining healthcare in Japan’s regions: the introduction of telehealth networks p. 140
Regional revitalization as a contested arena: promoting wine tourism in Yamanashi p. 159
New residents in the countryside p. 175
Has the island lure reached Japan? Remote islands between tourism boom, new residents, and fatal depopulation p. 177
Fluidity in rural Japan: how lifestyle migration and social movements contribute to the preservation of traditional ways of life on Iwaishima p. 196
Nai mono wa nai-challenging and subverting rural peripheralization? Decline and revival in a remote island town p. 212
Embracing the periphery: urbanites’ motivations for relocating to rural Japan p. 230
Conceptual interventions for a new understanding of rural Japan p. 245
Reinventing rurality: hybridity and socio-spatial depolarization in northern Japan p. 247
Rereading the changing Japanese rural peripheries: new approaches and actors for the future p. 262
Environmental activity gaps and how to fill them: rural depopulation and wildlife encroachment in Japan p. 276
Epilogue: Think global, act peripheral in Japan’s new ruralities p. 295
Index p. 302