Foreword
Acknowledgements
Prologue
Introducing James Luckcock of Birmingham
What was the English middle class? -
Concepts and methods
Setting the Scene
Places: The town - Birmingham
The countryside
Essex and Suffolk
People: The family shop - the Cadburys of Birmingham
The family pen - the Taylors of Essex
Religion and Ideology
Introduction
'The one thing needful': religion and the middle class
Church and chapel activity
The Evangelical revival and serious Christianity
Church against Dissent
The religious community
'Ye are all one in Christ Jesus': men, women and religion
Doctrines on manliness
Doctrines on femininity
The ministry
The minister's wife
'bishop' of Birmingham
Church organization: women voting and women speaking - Laymen and women
'The nursery of virtue': domestic ideology and the middle class
The Queen Caroline affair
Middle-class readers and writers
William Cowper and Hannah More
Local writers on separate spheres
Domestic ideologies of the 1830s and 1840s
Economic Structure and Opportunity
Introduction
'A modest competency': men, women and property
Enterprise organization
Land and capital
Enterprise finance
Providing for dependants
The interdependence of enterprise, family and friends
The role of marriage in the enterprise
Training for the enterprise
Retirement from the enterprise
'A man must act': men and the enterprise
Middle-class men and occupations
The search for a 'sound commercial education'
Commerce and trade
Banks and banking
Manufacture
Farming - The professions
The salaried
'The hidden investment': women and the enterprise
Women and property
Women's contribution to the enterprise
The education of women and its effects
Women as teachers
Women as innkeepers
Women in trade
The marginal place of women in the economy
Women, men and occupational identity
How did women survive?

Everyday Life: Gender in Action
Introduction
'Our family is a little world': family structure and relationships
The role of marriage in family formation
Fatherhood
Motherhood
Children
Brothers and sisters
The role of wider kin
'My own fireside': the creation of the middle-class home
What was a home?
The separation of home from work
The meaning of the garden
The lay-out of the home
Running the home
The question of servants
'Lofty pine and clinging vine': living with gender in the middle class
Manners and gentility
Changing attitudes to sexuality
Mobility and gender
Gender and the social occasion
Gender as appearance
'Improving times': men, women and the public sphere
James Bisset of Birmingham
Voluntary associations
Philanthropic societies
Leisure and pleasure
Men, women and citizenship
Epilogue
Appendices
Three poems by local authors
Sources for the local study
Tables Notes and references
Select bibliography
People index
Subject index

Table of Contents provided by Blackwell's Book Services and R.R. Bowker. Used with permission.