List of Maps
List of Figures
List of Tables
Preface
Introduction
Defining Oceania
Linguistic, Human Biological, and Cultural Variation in Oceania
About This Book
A Note on Dates and Time
Discovering the Oceanic Past
Enlightenment Voyagers
Outposts of Empire: Missionaries, Colonists, and Academic Beginnings
"The Problem of Polynesian Origins"
Te Rangi Hiroa and the "Micronesian Route" to Polynesia
The Discovery of Time Depth and Culture Change
The Search for Polynesian Sequences
Broadening Research Horizons
Beyond Polynesia: Archaeology in Melanesia and New Guinea
Not an Ivory Tower: Public Archaeology in the Pacific
Contemporary Approaches to Pacific Prehistory
The Pacific Islands as a Human Environment
Origins and Development of Pacific Islands
Types of Islands
Climatic Factors in the Pacific
Island Life and Biogeography
The Microbiotic World and Human Populations
Island Ecosystems
Human Impacts on Island Ecosystems
Sahul and the Prehistory of "Old" Melanesia
The Pleistocene Geography of Sahul and Near Oceania
Initial Human Arrival in Sabul and Near Oceania
Pleistocene Voyaging in Near Oceania
Near Oceania during the Pleistocene
Cultural Innovations of the Early Holocene
A Paradox and a Hypothesis
Lapita and the Austronesian Expansion
The Human Landscape of Near Oceania at 2000-1500 B.C.
The Advent of Lapita
Lapita Origins: The Austronesian Expansion
Lapita Dispersal into Remote Oceania