

Acknowledgments

Introduction

Ethnic Studies and Women's Studies: Interrelationships

The Difficult Dialogue of Curriculum Transformation: Ethnic Studies and Women's Studies

Funding Women's Studies

Private Foundation Grants to American Ethnic Studies Departments and Programs, 1972-1988: Patterns and Prospects

Different Voices: A Model Institute for Integrating Women of Color Into Undergraduate American Literature and History Courses

The Cutting Edge of the Liberal Arts: Some Essentials in Pedagogy and Theory Building

Transforming the Curriculum: Teaching About Women of Color

Teaching "White Women, Racism and Anti-Racism" in a Women's Studies Program

Gender and the Transformation of a Survey Course in Afro-American History

Black Studies in Liberal Arts Education

Towards an Epistemology of Ethnic Studies: African American Studies and Chicano Studies Contributions

Is Jewish Studies Ethnic Studies?

The Politics of Jewish Invisibility in Women's Studies

The Cutting Edge of the Liberal Arts: Some Implications for Scholarship

Gender in the Context of Race and Class

Asian American Literary Traditions: Real vs. Fake

Time and Time Again: Notes Toward an Understanding of Radical Elements in American Indian Fiction

The Sign in Sidney Brustein's Window: Toward a Transformative Aesthetic

Armenian American Women: The First Word . . .

Ethnic Studies, Women's Studies, and the Liberal Arts Curriculum: Retrospect and Prospect

A Black Feminist Perspective on the Academy

A Critical Assessment of Bloom: The Closing of the American Mind?

Praxis and the Prospect of Curriculum Transformation

Contributors

Index

Table of Contents provided by Blackwell's Book Services and R.R. Bowker. Used with permission.