Introduction : transgressing self and voice - contemporary fiction and the death of the narrator
"At first you feel a bit lost" : the varieties of second person narration
Class and consciousness : "we" narration from Conrad to postcolonial fiction
I, etcetera : multiperson narration and the range of contemporary narrators
Three extreme forms of narration and a note on postmodern unreliability
Unnatural narration in contemporary drama
Implied authors, historical authors, and the transparent narrator : toward a new model of the narrative transaction
Conclusion : voicing the unspeakable
Bibliography of "we" narratives