Introduction: Sex Offender Treatment: Psychological and Medical Approaches

Psychodynamics and Sexual Pathology

Behavior Dynamics

What Is In a Symptom? A Conservative Approach in the Therapy of Sex Offenders

The Psychodynamics of Sex Offenses and Implications for Treatment

Behavior Dynamics and Clinical Processes

The Role of Personality Disorders in the Treatment of Sex Offenders

Attitudinal Determinants

Aggression against Women by Men: Sexual and Spousal Assault

Psychodynamics

Dissociative Experiences of Sexual Offenders: A Comparison Between Two Outpatient Groups and Those Found to be Falsely Accused

Measurement and Appraisal

The Utility of the MMPI-2 with Pedophiles

Medical-Pharmacological Approaches

Clinical Processes: Pharmacotherapy and Psychotherapy

An Exploratory Study of the Role of Psychotropic Medications in the Treatment of Sex Offenders

Behavior Dynamics and Pharmacotherapy

Buspirone and Paraphilic Sexual Behavior

Clinical Processes: Pharmacotherapy and Group Therapy

Medroxy-Progesterone Acetate in the Treatment of Paraphilic Sexual Disorders

Treatment Via Chemical Impedance

The Texas Experience with DepoProvera: 1980-1990

Psychological Approaches

Decision Process Analogue

Perceptions of Child Sexual Assault

Clinical Processes

The Remodeling Process: A Grounded Theory Study of Perceptions of Treatment among Adult Male Incest Offenders

Clinical Processes

Outpatient Treatment for Adolescents with Sexually Inappropriate Behavior

Clinical Processes

Developing Insight in Incestuous Fathers

Conclusions and Cautions

Clinical Processes

What Happens to Therapists Who Work with Sex Offenders?

Social Policy and Clinical Practice

False Accusations of Nosocomial Sexual Abuse