

Preface	p. 17
Introduction	p. 19
Setting the scenes
Waddenland: Concoction or reality?: Defining the Wadden Sea region in a geographical and historical context	p. 31
The Wadden Sea region as a cultural landscape: History, heritage, management	p. 45
The relationship between natural and cultural heritage
Protecting the natural and cultural values of the Wadden Sea coast in the Anthropocene: An urgent call for integration	p. 67
The Wadden Sea: A natural landscape outside the dikes	p. 81
The North Frisians and the Wadden Sea	p. 95
Memory, mentality and landscape
Victory over the sea: Dutch diking techniques in the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries and their impact on Europe's history of mentality	p. 109
Between National Socialist ideology and resistance: Interpretations of artworks depicting the Wadden Sea	p. 121
Living with water in the T0ndermarsk and Gotteskoog	p. 137
Remystifying Frisia: The 'experience economy' along the Wadden Sea coast	p. 151
Maritime death, memory and landscape: Examples from the North Sea coast and the islands	p. 169
History and archaeology
Waddenland: From early modern prosperity to relegation to the periphery	p. 183
Local communities and regional economies with a global touch: Contacts along the Danish Wadden Sea coast in the eighteenth century	p. 199
Was there a maritime culture in Bremen in the nineteenth century?: Ethno-historical notes on coastal societies	p. 211
Yeoman capitalism and smallholder liberalism: Property rights and social realities of early modern Schleswig marshland societies	p. 227
Drowned by the Grote Mandrenke in 1362: New geo-archaeological research on the late medieval trading centre of Rungholt (North Frisia)	p. 239
Reinterpreting nature: A brief environmental history of trilateral conservation in the Wadden Sea region	p. 253
Political, economical and social challenges for cultural heritage management
Energy transition: A challenge for the management of the cultural landscape	p. 269
The Lower Saxon UNESCO Biosphere Reserve Programme: Engaging with inhabitants and stakeholders for a sustainable development	p. 283
Senses of place in the North Frisian Wadden Sea: Local consciousness and knowledge for place-based heritage development	p. 293
The Wadden Sea coast challenged by sea level rise	p. 305
A future for cultural history of the Dutch Wadden region: Challenges and policies in a maritime-agricultural landscape	p. 315
Conclusion	p. 329
Index	p. 335
List of figures and tables
Figures
Wadden Sea World Heritage Site Courtesy of Common Wadden Sea Secretariat	p. 22

- The Wadden Sea Region, or Waddenland, coincides with the marshes. Courtesy of Cartografisch Bureau JPhZ, Groningen and author p. 34
- The Groningen coastal marshland at the Wadden Sea Coast at Noordpolderzijl. The Noordpolder was embanked in 1811. Photo by author p. 37
- The Van Deventer provincial map of Friesland (1545-1559), actually showing the other northeastern provinces of the Netherlands (Groningen, Drenthe and Overijssel) as well, very neatly shows the contrast between the densely populated marshes with their numerous villages and an 'empty' hinterland. Courtesy of Tresoar, KvF 51d p. 38
- The town of Bolsward (Friesland) originated as two dwelling mounds in a tidal landscape. Upper part: Actueel Hoogtebestand Nederland; lower part: Hisgis, with additions. Cartography by Tort Markus, Faculty of Geosciences, Utrecht University p. 50
- The Slachtedijk/Zeedijk at Oosterbierum. A number of stones mark past stages in the heightening of the dike. Data by Sytse Keizer p. 51
- Table of Contents provided by Blackwell's Book Services and R.R. Bowker. Used with permission.