

Prisoners of War and their Captors in World War II

Bob Moore and Kent Fedorowich

BERG

Oxford • Washington, D.C.

Contents

Preface	vii
Abbreviations	ix
Prisoners of War in the Second World War: An Overview Bob Moore and Kent Fedorowich	1
1 Axis Prisoners in Britain during the Second World War: A Comparative Survey Bob Moore	19
2 'Blind Bureaucracy': The British Government and POWs in German Captivity, 1939–45 David Rolf	47
3 The Trouble with Allies: Canada and the Negotiation of Prisoner of War Exchanges Jonathan F. Vance	69
4 Captives of their Countrymen: Free French and Vichy French POWs in Africa and the Middle East, 1940–3 Martin Thomas	87
5 Propaganda and Political Warfare: The Foreign Office, Italian POWs and the Free Italy Movement, 1940–3 Kent Fedorowich	119
6 Human Vivisection: The Intoxication of Limitless Power in Wartime Charles G. Roland	149
7 Africans and African Americans in Enemy Hands David Killingray	181

Contents

8	Italian Prisoners of War in Great Britain, 1943–6 Lucio Sponza	205
9	Captors and Captives on The Burma–Thailand Railway Sibylla Jane Flower	227
10	From Consideration to Contempt: The Changing Nature of Japanese Military and Popular Perceptions of Prisoners of War Through the Ages Ikuhiko Hata	253
11	Protecting Prisoners of War, 1939–95 Joan Beaumont	277
	Notes on Contributors	299
	Index	301