

DEPARTMENT OF GEOGRAPHY IN EUROPE

The north of Ireland

Paul Lyle
University of Ulster

TERRA

Contents

Preface vi; Acknowledgements vii

Introduction	1
Ireland from space	3
Earth formation and plate tectonics	9
Plate-tectonic processes 9; Rock types and their formation 14
Geological time	21
Geological history: a case study 25
Geological history of Ireland	31
The Precambrian 35; The Cambrian, Ordovician and Silurian 36; The Devonian 43; The Carboniferous 44; The Permian 47; The Triassic 48; The Jurassic 49; The Cretaceous 49; The Palaeogene–Neogene 51; The Quaternary 53
Geological maps	57
Making geological maps 57; Reading geological maps 59; The 1:250000-scale geological map 60; Geological boundaries 62
Geology and archaeology in Ireland	69
The Stone Age: the Mesolithic period 70; The Neolithic period 71; The Megalithic builders 73; The geology of the Bronze and Iron Ages 74
EXCURSIONS	77
The west	79
The Ox Mountains and north Sligo 79; Benbulbin and the Gleniff Horseshoe Road 85; South Donegal 87; North Donegal 97
Fermanagh and Tyrone	109
County Fermanagh 109; County Tyrone 117
Down	129
North Down 129; Permian and Triassic rocks 138; The Mourne Mountains and south Down 143
Antrim	153
The Causeway Coast 153; Mid-County Antrim 179
Appendix 193; Glossary 199; Further reading 207; Index 209	