

CONTENTS

Preface	XI
PART I INTRODUCTION
CHAPTER 1 LIVING AND ADJUSTING	3
How Adjustment Is Studied	5
Why Study Adjustment?	9
Periods of Adjustive Crisis	12
Adjustment as Achievement or Process	15
Summing Up	15
CHAPTER 2 PERSONALITY AND ADJUSTMENT	17
The Concept of Personality	17
Scientific Principles and the Individual	20
Personality: An Inference from Behavior	24
How We Find Out about Personality	25
Verbal Reports	26
Behavioral Reactions	27
Bodily Reactions	28
Personality and Consistency	29
Consistency of Behavior	29
Consistency of Style	31
Expressive movements	31
Cognitive and defensive styles	32
Consistency of Coping	34
Personality and Change	35

Surface, Depth, and the Unconscious	35
Personality Theory	36
Summing Up	39

PART II STRESS AND COPING

CHAPTER 3 THE STRESSES OF LIFE	45
Stress and Adjustment	47
The Nature of Stress	47
Frustration and Threat	49
Conflict	53
Conditions Leading to Threat Appraisal	56
Environmental conditions	56
Personality Factors	63
Anxiety as a Stress Emotion	69
Stress and Maladjustment	71
Summing Up	72
CHAPTER 4 HOW WE COPE WITH STRESS	74
Direct Action	75
Preparing against Harm	75
Aggression	78
Avoidance	82
Inaction or Apathy: A Pattern of Hopelessness or Despair	83
Palliative Modes of Coping: The Defense Mechanism	85
Description of the Defenses	86
Identification	87
Displacement	88
Repression	90
Denial	91
Reaction formation	91
Projection	91
Intellectualization	92
Problems with the Defense Concept	93
How Defenses Are Recognized	95
Successful Defense	96
Positive versus Negative Consequences of a Defense	96
Summing Up	98
CHAPTER 5 STRESS AND BODILY ILLNESS	100
Emotions and Bodily Changes	101
Neural Control of Emotion	101
The cerebral cortex	101

The reticular formation	102
The limbic system	104
The hypothalamus	104
The autonomic nervous system	105
Biochemical Control of Emotion	110
Psychosomatic Mechanisms	112
Selye's General Adaptation Syndrome	112
Specificity in Illness	116
Generality versus Specificity in the Explanation of Illness	117
Current Research Linking Stress and Bodily Illness	119
The Stress of Demanding Life Changes	119
Stress and Heart Disease	120
Concluding Comment	122
Summing Up	123

PART III OUTCOMES OF THE STRUGGLE TO ADJUST

CHAPTER 6 FAILURES OF ADJUSTMENT	128
Organic Disorders	129
Functional Disorders	131
The Psychoses	131
Affective psychoses	132
Schizophrenia	133
Paranoia	136
The Neuroses	137
Anxiety reaction	138
Dissociative reactions	139
Conversion reaction	141
Phobias	142
Obsessive-compulsive reaction	143
Neurotic depression	144
Distinctions between Neuroses and Psychoses	144
Personality Disorders	146
Summing Up	151
CHAPTER 7 THE HEALTHY PERSONALITY	153
Attempts to Study Healthy Personalities	154
Grinker's "Homoclitics"	154
The Mercury Astronauts	156
Competent Youth	159
Rebellious Youth	165
Issues Concerning "What Is Healthy?"	169
Psychological Integration and Health	170
Values about Health and Illness	173

Positive and negative terms	174
Health versus virtue	175
Social class differences in outlook	178
Are some societies healthier than others?	179
Mental Health and the Environment	182
Summing Up	184

PART IV MODELS OF SUCCESS AND FAILURE OF ADJUSTMENT

CHAPTER 8 ANCIENT AND MODERN OUTLOOKS TOWARD

MENTAL ILLNESS	189
The Primitive Outlook	190
The View of Ancient Civilizations	192
Medieval Horrors	193
Renaissance Enlightenment and Modern Beginnings	197
Summing Up	202

CHAPTER 9 THE MEDICAL-BIOLOGICAL MODEL

Genetic Factors in Adjustment	205
Variability and Heritability	207
Inheritance of Mental Disorder	207
Evidence of Genetic Influence	209
What Is Inherited?	211
Physique, personality, and mental illness	211
Biochemical-defect hypotheses	212
Inheritance of Mental Retardation	216
The Interaction of Heredity and Environment	217
The Emotional Hangup about Heredity and Environment	219
The Notion of Superior and Inferior Peoples	219
The Hereditarian and Environmentalist Ideologies	220
Scientists Are No Exception	221
Summing Up	224

CHAPTER 10 THE SOCIOGENIC MODEL

Culture and Adjustive Variation	228
Attitudes toward Alcohol	229
Mental Illness in Irish and Italian-Americans	230
Attitudes toward Pain and Illness	232
Social Class and Adjustment	233
The Faris and Dunham Study	233
Hollingshead and Redlich's Research	234
Susceptibility to Illness or Access to Treatment?	234

Attitudes toward One's Problems	235
Weakness of the Sociogenic Model	238
Summing Up	239
CHAPTER 11 THE PSYCHOGENIC MODEL	241
Correlational and Experimental Research	242
Maternal Overprotection	243
Patterns of Parental Authority	244
Family Communication in the Case of Disturbed Children	244
Prediction	249
Independent clinical evaluation	249
Experimental Research on Child Rearing	249
Retrospective Study of Life Histories	251
Longitudinal Research	254
Concluding Comment	257
Summing Up	257
CHAPTER 12 CRITIQUE AND SYNTHESIS OF THE MODELS	259
Problems with the Classification of Mental Disorders	259
Underlying Process versus Description	259
Variations in Diagnostic Assessment	262
Some Problems with Classification in General	264
Proposal for an Alternative Approach	266
Criticisms of the Medical-Biological Model	267
Why Does the Medical-Biological Model Persist?	269
A Synthesis of the Divergent Viewpoints	273
The Interaction of Biological and Social Factors	273
Concluding Comment	279
Summing Up	281
PART V TREATMENT
CHAPTER 13 THE PSYCHODYNAMIC THERAPIES	287
Basic Principles of Psychodynamic Therapies	288
Freudian Psychoanalysis	290
Resistance	291
Transference	292
Reeducation	295
Neo-Freudian Concepts	302
Humanistic-Existential Approaches	305
Carl Roger's Client-centered Therapy	306
Rollo May's Existential Therapy	308

Viktor Frankl's Logotherapy	310
Fritz Perl's Gestalt Therapy	311
Group Psychotherapy	313
Summing Up	318
CHAPTER 14 BEHAVIOR THERAPY	319
Basic Principles	319
Historical Background	320
Strategies	322
Tactics	325
Desensitization (or Counterconditioning)	326
Aversion Training	332
Assertive Training	333
The Token Economy	333
Modeling	334
Contrasts with Insight Therapy	334
Reconciling Behavior Therapy with Psychodynamic Therapy	335
Summing Up	343
CHAPTER 15 PSYCHOTHERAPY EVALUATED: ALTERNATIVE SOCIETAL APPROACHES	345
How Well Does Psychotherapy Work?	345
Specifying the Treatment Variables	347
Assessing Personality Change	349
Limitations of Psychotherapy	350
Suitability of Patients	350
Availability	351
Other Kinds of Treatment	352
Hospitalization	352
Physical Therapy	355
Insulin shock	355
Convulsive shock	356
Psychosurgery	357
Drugs	358
The Community Mental Health Center	362
Prevention	364
Summing Up	366
References	369
Acknowledgments	391
Index	396