

CONTENTS

Introduction	1
Part 1: Order; uniformity; predictability: librarianship as bureaucracy	7
Chapter 1: Classical bureaucracy: the Prussian state and the cataloguing room	8
Chapter 2: Variants of bureaucracy: libraries as machine bureaucracies and paternalistic bureaucracies	14
Chapter 3: Libraries as professional bureaucracies	22
Chapter 4: The dysfunctions of bureaucracy	28
Chapter 5: The frontiers of professional bureaucracy in librarianship	34
Part 2: The new library management: libraries as systems	45
Chapter 1: Systems theory of organization and management	46
Chapter 2: Scientific management and social engineering	51
Chapter 3: Libraries as systems: survival and purpose	55
Chapter 4: Systems management methodology: the hard and the soft	68
Part 3: Human resources and people	81
Chapter 1: Job satisfaction: the theory and the research	82
Chapter 2: Towards an understanding of job satisfaction in library organizations	98

Conflict and change in library organizations

Chapter 3: Effective leadership	112
Chapter 4: Interpersonal skills development	123
Chapter 5: Groups	138
Chapter 6: Human resources/soft systems library organization	147
Part 4: Beyond management: the revolution in organization theory	155
Chapter 1: Two historic mentalities	156
Chapter 2: Perceptions and role sets: the contribution of phenomenology	168
Chapter 3: Power, conflict and domination	176
Chapter 4: Interactionist organization analysis	189
Part 5: Organizational change	197
Chapter 1: The nature of organizational change	198
Chapter 2: Organization Development (OD)	201
Chapter 3: Organization development in libraries: three schemes	205
Chapter 4: The character of library organization development	212
Chapter 5: Diagnosis, decision, implementation and consolidation	218
Chapter 6: Decision-making	228
Chapter 7: Conflict resolution	235
Chapter 8: Contingency in organization theory	244
Epilogue	251
References	257
Index	271