

Contents

Foreword	vii
Notes on the Contributors	viii
Introduction Martin Warner and Roger Crisp	1
PROLOGUE
1 Community and Civil Strife Paul Gilbert	17
PART I TERRORISM
2 Reflections on Terrorism and Violence Anthony Quinton	35
3 Some Observations on the Relationships between Terrorism and Freedom Paul Wilkinson	44
4 Terrorists or Freedom Fighters David George	54 ✗
5 Terrorism: Historical Roots and Moral Justifications Robert Phillips	68 ✗
PART II PROTEST
6 Rawls in the Nonideal World: an Evaluation of the Rawlsian Account of Civil Disobedience David Gosling	81
7 Nuclear Energy, Value Conflicts, and the Legitimacy of Political Decisions: the Rise and Fall of an Alleged Justification for Violent Civil Disobedience Heta Häyry and Matti Häyry	96
8 The Sounds of Silence Susan Mendus	106

PART III POWER

9	Anarchists against the Revolution Stephen Clark	123
10	The Civilizers versus the Barbarians: Power Relations between Centre and Periphery in Italy Martin Bull	138
11	Who should be Entitled to Vote in Self-determination Referenda? Harry Beran	152
12	Self-determination and Sovereignty Richard Tur	167
	Bibliography	178
	Index	191