

Contents

Introduction:

Life and work history analyses	Shirley Dex	1
Histories of sickness: making use of multiple accounts of the same process	Paul Bellaby	20
A land of 'boundless opportunity': mobility and stability in nineteenth-century England	Andrew Miles and David Vincent	43
From methodological monopoly to pluralism in the sociology of social mobility	Daniel Bertaux	73
Handling work history data in standard statistical packages	Catherine Marsh and Jonathan Gershuny	93
Ageing and life history: the meaning of reminiscence in late life	Peter G. Coleman	120
Life histories and the cultural politics of historical knowing: the Dictionary of National Biography and the late nineteenth-century political field	David Amigoni	144
Labour markets and industrial structures in women's working lives	Sylvia Walby	167
Unemployment incidence following redundancy; the value of longitudinal approaches	Leslie Rosenthal	187
Youth unemployment and work histories	Meredith Baker and Peter Elias	214