

Contents

Abbreviations xv

Introduction 3

PART I BEGINNINGS

- 1 Origins 11
  - Germany's Scientific Hegemony Threatened 14
  - Foundations 18
  - First Creations 21
  - World War I 25
- 2 The Weimar Years 29
  - The Poverty of German Science 29
  - Scientists Take Control 34
  - International Relations 36
  - What's in a Name? 37
  - Spawning Industry-Related Sciences 40
  - That "Very Emphyrean of Science" in Berlin-Dahlem 44

PART II NATIONAL SOCIALISM

- 3 From Accommodation to Passive Opposition, 1933–35 51
  - Forced Transformations 53
  - Rifle at Rest 57
  - The Consolidation Process 59
  - Jewish Scientists Who Stayed or Delayed Departure 63
  - Storm Troopers and Communists 65

	The Balance Sheet: Quantitative and Qualitative Losses	67
	Passive Opposition: the Haber Memorial Service	68
4	National Socialist Science Policy and the Kaiser Wilhelm Society	73
	Universities	73
	Ministries Transformed	76
	Unification, Nationalization, and Control	81
	Military Science	84
	Mobilization for War	90
5	The Turning Point, 1936–39	97
	The Last Stand	97
	The Change in Leadership	100
	Research and the Four Year Plan	102
	International Exchange and Isolation	105
6	The Survival of Basic Biological Research	110
	The Berlin Biological Community	111
	Scientifically or Politically Qualified?	115
	Viruses, Sex Hormones, and Mutation Genetics	118
	Funding for Basic Biological Research	123
	Eugenics at the Kaiser Wilhelm Institutes	125
7	The War Years, 1939–45	131
	Albert Vögler: The Perfect but Reluctant President, 1941	132
	Greater Germany and the New Order of German Science	137
	For the Fatherland?	150
	Conditions of Research	157
8	The Uranium Machine	162
	Uranium Fission	162
	Atomic Beginnings	164
	Nuclear Power Conferences in Berlin-Dahlem, 1942	169
	The Final War Years	175
	Uranium Machine Experiments in the Bunker and Cave	177
	Alsos, Farm Hall, and Operation Epsilon	181
	Epilogue	187
	Conclusion	199
	Appendix	207
	Notes	215
	Sources	249
	Index	267