

Contents

---

	Page
Acknowledgements . . . . .	ii
Foreword by Anthony Clare . . . . .	iii
Preface . . . . .	v
List of contributors. . . . .	vii
 Violence as a health issue
Editor's introduction . . . . .	1
 Part 1: The origins and causes of violence
Editorial . . . . .	7
 1 Human violence: a biological perspective
by John Gunn . . . . .	11
Concepts . . . . .	11
Social functions . . . . .	12
Functions of social living . . . . .	13
Hierarchies and sanctions . . . . .	14
Excess violence . . . . .	15
Theories of violence . . . . .	16
Social dominance theory . . . . .	19
Psychiatry and psychology . . . . .	20
Criminal and group violence . . . . .	21
Domestic violence . . . . .	22
Warfare . . . . .	22
Evolution of co-operation . . . . .	25
Conclusion . . . . .	26
 2 Aggression at different levels of social complexity
by Robert A. Hinde . . . . .	31
Introduction . . . . .	31
Individual aggression . . . . .	32
Factors giving rise to aggression . . . . .	32
Aggression between groups . . . . .	33
International war . . . . .	33
Factors maintaining the institution of war . . . . .	34
Conclusion . . . . .	34

3	The roots and role of violence in development
	by Eric Taylor . . . . .	37
	Introduction . . . . .	37
	Normal development . . . . .	37
	Types of aggression . . . . .	38
	Tantrums . . . . .	38
	Rough-and-tumble play . . . . .	39
	Instrumental violence . . . . .	40
	Aggression in family interactions . . . . .	40
	Classification of types of aggression . . . . .	41
	Developmental consequences of aggression . . . . .	41
	Benefits of aggression . . . . .	41
	Risks of aggression . . . . .	42
	Individual differences . . . . .	43
	Aetiology of high aggressiveness . . . . .	45
	Other psychological problems . . . . .	45
	Constitutional factors . . . . .	46
	Genetic inheritance . . . . .	46
	Gender differences . . . . .	47
	Altered neuropsychological processes . . . . .	48
	Social processing . . . . .	49
	Environmental factors . . . . .	49
	Family relationships . . . . .	49
	Maudsley Hospital family study . . . . .	50
	Environmental toxins . . . . .	51
	Conclusions . . . . .	52
4	Contemporary psychological research into violence: an overview
	by Clive R. Hollin . . . . .	55
	Introduction . . . . .	55
	Conceptual bases of violent behaviour . . . . .	55
	Situational analysis . . . . .	56
	Physical factors . . . . .	57
	Social factors . . . . .	58
	The person . . . . .	58
	Background . . . . .	58
	Response: cognition . . . . .	59
	Response: emotion . . . . .	60
	Response: action . . . . .	61
	Impact of violent behaviour . . . . .	62
	Role of the victim . . . . .	62
	Violence towards women and children . . . . .	63
	Reducing violence . . . . .	63

Prevention . . . . .	64
Treatment . . . . .	65
Context . . . . .	66
Closing remark . . . . .	67
5 Women as violent offenders and violent patients
by Tony Maden . . . . .	69
Gender differences in offending . . . . .	69
Causes of gender differences . . . . .	70
Growth of feminism . . . . .	71
Provocation in domestic killings . . . . .	71
Female violence and psychiatric disorder . . . . .	72
Psychiatric disposal . . . . .	72
Reasons for different sentencing practices . . . . .	73
Surveys of violent offenders . . . . .	74
Violence by women within prisons . . . . .	74
Self-injury . . . . .	75
Violent women in hospital . . . . .	76
Conclusions . . . . .	78
Part 2: Mental disorder and violence
Editorial . . . . .	81
6 Mental illness and violence
by Pamela J. Taylor . . . . .	85
Frequency of coincidence of violence and mental illness . . . . .	86
Psychosis as a factor in causing violence . . . . .	87
Symptomatic triggers of violence . . . . .	87
Violence and illness careers . . . . .	89
Impact of psychosis on general life-style . . . . .	90
Psychosis and violence as a product of other primary pathology . . . . .	91
Mentally ill and violent patients within the health service . . . . .	92
7 Personality and violence
by Ronald Blackburn . . . . .	99
Introduction . . . . .	99
Aggression and personality . . . . .	99
Acts and dispositions . . . . .	99
Consistency of aggression . . . . .	101
Individual differences and aggression . . . . .	102

A cognitive-interpersonal model of personality . . . . .	106
Aggression and the interpersonal circle . . . . .	106
Interpersonal style, cognition and the persistence of interpersonal style . . . . .	108
Conclusion . . . . .	110
8 Drugs, aggression and violence
by David M. Forshaw and John Strang . . . . .	113
Introduction . . . . .	113
Extent of illicit drug use . . . . .	113
Drugs and crime . . . . .	114
Drugs and violence . . . . .	115
Roles of drug use in violence . . . . .	115
Nature of the relationship between drugs and crime . . . . .	117
Result of the sought-after effect . . . . .	118
Secondary to intoxication . . . . .	118
Secondary to an induced mental disorder . . . . .	119
Secondary to a withdrawal state . . . . .	120
Secondary to personality changes . . . . .	120
Secondary to adopted life-style . . . . .	121
Drugs groups . . . . .	122
Stimulants . . . . .	122
Sedatives . . . . .	122
Opiates . . . . .	123
Hallucinogens . . . . .	123
Influence of route of drug use . . . . .	123
Conclusion . . . . .	123
9 Alcohol and violence
by John E. Hodge . . . . .	127
Introduction . . . . .	127
Alcohol and crime . . . . .	128
Alcohol and violent crime . . . . .	129
Assault . . . . .	129
Homicide . . . . .	129
Rape . . . . .	129
Domestic violence . . . . .	130
Victims of violence . . . . .	130
Types of relationship . . . . .	130
Natural experiments . . . . .	131
Violent incidents in relation to alcohol consumed . . . . .	131
Theoretical perspectives . . . . .	132
Moral theory . . . . .	132
Disinhibition theory . . . . .	132

Stimulation theory . . . . .	133
Other factors which may explain the relationship between alcohol and violence . . . . .	134
Predisposing factors . . . . .	135
Individual differences . . . . .	135
Conclusion . . . . .	136
 Part 3: Victims and survivors: shifting the focus of concern
Editorial . . . . .	139
 10 Managing disasters and stress in police officers involved in the aftermath
by Barry Webb . . . . .	147
Introduction . . . . .	147
Experiences at the crash scene . . . . .	147
The need for immediate debriefing of officers . . . . .	148
Involvement in mortuary procedures . . . . .	149
Compulsory counselling . . . . .	149
Support to the bereaved . . . . .	149
Stress suffered by officers engaged in the support process . . . . .	151
Conclusion . . . . .	152
 11 Children as victims and survivors
by William Yule . . . . .	153
Introduction . . . . .	153
Violence within the family . . . . .	153
Physical abuse . . . . .	154
Munchausen syndrome by proxy . . . . .	154
Child sexual abuse . . . . .	155
Transgenerational transmission . . . . .	156
Child witnesses of violence . . . . .	158
Post-traumatic stress disorder and children . . . . .	160
Common stress reactions in children . . . . .	160
Studies on post-traumatic stress disorder . . . . .	162
Treatment of post-traumatic stress disorder . . . . .	163
Examples of treatment . . . . .	164
Conclusions . . . . .	165
 12 Everyday violence and experience of crime
by Elizabeth A. Stanko . . . . .	169
Defining public violence . . . . .	169
The danger . . . . .	171

Women, violence and danger . . . . .	173
Men, violence and danger . . . . .	175
Physicians' work and everyday violence . . . . .	177
Sexually intrusive situations . . . . .	177
Physical danger within the home . . . . .	177
Violence against men . . . . .	178
Racial or homophobic violence . . . . .	178
Post-traumatic stress disorder . . . . .	178
Conclusions . . . . .	178

Part 4: Evaluation of the clinician's role

Editorial . . . . .	181
----------------------------	-----

13 Reconviction: a measure of psychiatric efficacy?

by Graham Robertson . . . . .	183
Introduction . . . . .	183
The mentally ill and mentally handicapped . . . . .	183
The mentally ill offender . . . . .	184
The mentally handicapped offender . . . . .	185
Follow-up study of mentally disordered offenders . . . . .	185
Case histories . . . . .	187
Value of reconviction data to the clinician . . . . .	188
Comparison of people with psychosis and people with personality disorder . . . . .	189
Psychotic disorders . . . . .	189
Psychopathic disorders . . . . .	189
Psychotherapy and Grendon Prison . . . . .	189
Follow-up study of reconviction: experimental design . . . . .	190
The criterion measure of reconviction . . . . .	192
Case histories from Grendon Prison . . . . .	193
Reconviction as a criterion of therapeutic success . . . . .	195
Conclusion . . . . .	196

14 Furthering medical and psychological understanding of violence

by Pamela J. Taylor . . . . .	197
--------------------------------------	-----