

Table of Contents

Part One

OVERVIEW AND MAIN ISSUES

Chapter 1

The Policy Context

A new social policy issue	13
The growing need for long-term care	14
Bibliography	30

Chapter 2

The Development of Long-term Care Policy

Emergence of long-term care policy	33
Developing a more integrated approach	36
Paying for long-term care	39
Recent reforms to long-term care financing	42
Bibliography	46

Chapter 3

The Provision of Long-term Care

Long-term care in institutional settings	47
Ageing in place?	56
Long-term care outside institutional settings	61
Bibliography	65

Chapter 4

Issues in Home Care Services

The issues	67
Trends in institutional and home care	68
Factors affecting policies: four country examples	70
Home care as a substitute for other forms of care	74
Rethinking, not replacing institutions	77
Bibliography	78

Chapter 5
Issues in Informal Care

The availability of informal care	81
The policy issues	83
Policy responses	86
Conclusion	89
Bibliography	90

Chapter 6
The Future of Group Residential Care

Why institutional care is likely to continue	93
Characteristics of institutions and their residents	94
Problems with institutional care	95
Towards a typology	96
Trends towards change	100
Future themes	102
Conclusion	103
Bibliography	104

Part Two
THE CARE OF FRAIL ELDERLY PEOPLE IN SELECTED OECD COUNTRIES

Acknowledgements	109
----------------------------	-----

Chapter 7
Canada

Development of the health care system	111
Definition of long-term and continuing care	112
Demographic change	112
Development of long-term care policy	113
Current provisions	114
Co-ordination of care services	116
The funding of care	117
Policy issues for the future	118
Conclusion	119
Bibliography	120

Chapter 8
Denmark

Development of long-term care policy	121
The demographic and social context	122
Home and day care services	123
The funding of home and day care	126
Nursing homes and other special housing schemes	126
Co-ordination of health and social services	128
Conclusion	129
Bibliography	130

Chapter 9

France

Development of long-term care policy	131
The demographic and social context	132
Sources of funding for care	133
Residential and home care services	136
Proposals for reform	138
Conclusions	140
Bibliography	141

Chapter 10

Japan

The demographic and social context	143
Development of long-term care policies	144
Recent reforms	147
Provision and financing of long-term care services	148
Trends in receipt of long-term care services	152
Continuing policy problems	154
Bibliography	155

Chapter 11

Spain

Development of welfare policies	157
The demographic and social context	158
Current provisions	159
Costs and charges for services	161
Plans for the future	162
Conclusion	163
Bibliography	164

Chapter 12

Sweden

Development of social policy for the elderly	165
Demographic and social trends	166
Development of policies for long-term care	167
Provision of long-term care and related services	168
The funding of care	173
Issues for the future	174
Bibliography	176

Chapter 13

United Kingdom

The demographic and social context	177
The development of welfare policies	178
The road to reform	180
Trends in provision of long-term care services	183
Costs and charges prior to the reforms	186
Managing the mixed economy of care: the reforms of 1992-93	187
Initial impact of the reforms	189
Conclusions	192
Bibliography	193

Chapter 14
United States

The policy context: demographic and health trends	195
Development of long-term care policy	196
Support for long-term care from public health programmes: Medicare and Medicaid	198
Other sources of public support for long-term care	207
Scale and cost of current provisions	208
Private long-term care insurance	210
The debate on long-term care reform	211
Bibliography	215

Part Three
DEVELOPMENTS AND DEBATES

Chapter 15
Changing the Balance of Care: Australia and New Zealand

The balance of care in context	219
Strategies for changing the balance of care	221
Outcomes	227
Conclusions	235
Bibliography	237

Chapter 16
Changing the Balance of Care: Japan

Development of the welfare state	239
Influence of traditional forms of care	242
Financing of social welfare	244
Features of Japanese policy	244
Conclusion	245
Bibliography	246

Chapter 17
Adapting the “Scandinavian Model” of Care for Elderly People

The challenge	247
The resources	249
Scandinavian policies on the elderly	250
The development of policies for care of the elderly	253
Recent policy trends	253
What future for the Scandinavian model?	257
Bibliography	259

Chapter 18
The Debate about Long-term Care Reform in Germany

The growing problem	261
Policy legacies and institutional structures	262
Cognitive maps and cultural traditions	263
The policy network	264
Policy proposals and processes	265
The contents of the new bill	271

The probable impact of the new policy	272
Conclusions	274
Bibliography	277

Chapter 19

The Debate about Long-term Care Reform: a View from the United States

Long-term care in the United States	279
The goals of reform	281
Global issues for long-term care initiatives	283
Design issues	287
Conclusions	290
Bibliography	292

Chapter 20

Policy Issues for the Future

Objectives and achievements	295
The process of “continuing care”	296
Who will pay?	299
The future of long-term care	300
The policy debate	301
Bibliography	305