

Acknowledgements .....	VII
Introduction: The Holocaust, Literature, Anthropology and History .....	1
Part I: Elias Canetti – Anthropology as Literature .....	9
1 Science, Power, Literature and the Holocaust .....	9
1.1 The Lack of an Intellectual and a Historical Context: The Holocaust and the Symbolic Exertion of Power .....	9
1.2 Canetti – A Ruler? .....	23
1.3 Canetti – A Scholar or a Writer? .....	29
2 Auto Da Fé as a Negative Poetics .....	32
3 Canetti’s Literary Devices for the Exertion of Power .....	46
3.1 Canetti’s Thinking in Images .....	46
3.2 Canetti’s Use of Philosophical and Anthropological Literature .....	60
3.3 Metamorphosis and Totemism .....	67
3.4 Death .....	74
3.5 Authority and Power .....	79
Part II: Franz Baermann Steiner – Anthropology and Totalitarian Terror ...	81
4 Anthropology and the Perception of Non-Western Peoples .....	83
4.1 The German Background .....	83
4.2 The Influence of Marcel Mauss’s Conceptual Approach .....	85
4.3 The Context of British Anthropology .....	88
4.4 Steiner’s Relationship to British Anthropology .....	90
5 An Oriental Undermines Orientalism .....	105
5.1 Steiner’s »A Comparative Study of the Forms of Slavery« and Said’s Orientalism .....	106
5.2 Taboo .....	118
5.3 Civilization .....	135
Part III: Style, Law and Danger .....	149
6 Elias Canetti’s and Franz Baermann Steiner’s Notion of Literature as Scholarship .....	149
7 Coincidences Between Steiner’s Anthropology and Poetry .....	157
8 Law, Myth and Danger .....	178

Conclusion: Steiner's and Canetti's Contribution to Debates About Postmodernity . . . . .	191
Bibliography . . . . .	205
Index . . . . .	227